NUERNBERG HIT IN BIGGEST RAF RAID

JAPS DRIVEN FROM HOLD ON NEW GEORGIA

Bitterly Contested Campaign for Solomons Island Ended Thursday.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 28—Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced that all Japanese resistance has ceased on New Georgia in the Central Solomons.

The bitterly-contested campaign there ended Thursday when American troops pushing up from the captured Munda airfield 12 miles to the south occupied Bairoko Harbor. Apparently the remnants of the Japanese garrison which had held out there since Munda fell Aug. 5 succeeded in fleeing by night in barges across the Kula gulf to the enemy's base of Vila on Kolombangara.

Vila's garrison also is imperiled, not only by New Georgia's complete conquest but also by the recent surprise occupation by American troops of Vella Lavella island above Kolombangara.

In the final occupation of Bairoko, large stores, including much food and some vehicles, were seized. There were no reports of Japanese prisoners. The Bairoko defenses had been crumbling the past few days after the Americans succeeded in bringing up artillery.

The fall of New Georgia occurred near the end of the second month of the Pacific offensive which opened June 30 with seizure of Rendova island from which the Americans immediately started shelling Munda.

Today's communique also disclosed that elements of the United States forces have occupied small islands of Munda in the vicinity of Baanga. Until a few days ago, the Japanese were shelling the airfield from Baanga island.

In northeastern New Guinea, where the fall of the Salamaua airdrome appears imminent, American and Australian troops are infiltrating Japanese positions from the west and some have made contact with the enemy at the southwestern end of the field. A number of enemy pillboxes have been eliminated.

Only One Enemy Base in Solomons

By The Associated Press

U. S. HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Aug. 28—American occupation of Bairoko on New Georgia island leaves Bougainville as the only Japanese operating base in the Solomons and dooms the enemy garrison of possibly 10,000 men on Kolombangara Island, a navy spokesman said today.

The spokesman for Adm. William F. Halsey Jr., commander of South Pacific forces, said Bairoko "closed the book" on the 57-day New Georgia campaign except for mopping operations.

"It was a most satisfying show," he added. "Our losses in personnel and material were light, both compared to the Japanese losses and what we had expected we would have to pay."

He pointed to the fact the enemy is not putting up a fight against our occupation of Vella Lavella, another in the chain of closely-spaced central Solomon islands, and said the Japanese can't do much there or at Kolombangara unless they gain air and sea superiority.

PINCER MOVE ON JAPS SEEN

Allied Drive Straight Through Enemy-Held Pacific Isles Probable.

By PRESTON GROVER
AP War Correspondent

NEW DELHI, Aug. 28—A vast pincer movement to cut off Japan from all her newly-acquired southern islands was regarded as a possibility here today as a result of the Quebec conference decision to lay new emphasis on this theater.

At one end would be Vice Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, supreme allied commander for southeast Asia, and the other, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

A glance at the map shows the possibility. Part of the pincer operation already is underway from MacArthur's side. As it looks from this end, it would be the war's most widespread battle for airbases.

Lay one end of a ruler on Burma and the other end on the Truk islands, big Japanese naval and air bastion north of New Guinea. It will give a picture of the obvious line of attack open to the allies without undertaking the long job of recapturing 10,000 islands.

Directly on the line is Canton with a hinterland highly suitable for airports. From such airports land-based airplanes could attack Japanese supply lines leading to her forces in all her southern islands.

Japanese air bases along the coast of Burma and China and in the Truk islands all are obvious targets of the allied global strategy.

Into this picture comes Mountbatten as the new southeast Asia commander. It gives the allies their greatest opportunity of compelling Japan to spread her air force over an extremely wide range to fend off attacks.

Any attack launched by Mountbatten on Burma would draw Japanese forces away from MacArthur's end, or at least reduce the number of reserves available.

The reconquest of Burma can be only incidental to its importance in the vast pincer movement to squeeze Japan from both sides. With Burma airbases in allied possession, land-based aircraft would be in a position to protect any fleet operations against the Malay peninsula.

WIFE INDICTED IN VANCE DEATH

First Degree Murder Charged as Grand Jury Closes 4-Day Session.

An indictment charging first degree murder was returned by a Marion county grand jury this morning against Mrs. Gladys Davis Vance, charged with slaying her husband, Terley Vance, Glenwood elementary school principal, early last June.

As a result of the indictment, Mrs. Vance will be arraigned shortly in common pleas court. If she pleads guilty, the way will be open for Judge Hector S. Young to pass sentence. If she pleads not guilty, the machinery of the courts automatically provide her a trial. She may have the case tried before a jury if she wishes.

The grand jury devoted more than two days of its session to a study of the Vance case, and questioned 44 witnesses in connection with that case. The jury's proceedings are secret and no details regarding the testimony were made public.

Three other persons were indicted as the jury reported to Judge Young late this morning, concluding a four-day session in which it studied 13 cases and examined 66 witnesses.

Other indictments were returned as follows:

Two counts of forgery against Harry A. Wilson of Marion.

Charge of breaking and entering returned against Forest Kunkle of Marion.

Two counts charging possession of narcotic instruments, charged against Louis H. Boltzman alias L. H. Bolton, whose home is away from Marion.

The jury concluded its session by making an inspection of the jail, reporting it found the jail clean and sanitary, and that proper discipline was maintained.

REDS NOW HALF WAY TO POLISH BORDER

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Aug. 28—The Russian army's westward drive across the Ukraine has pushed the Germans back another 15 miles and reached the Psel river, a tributary of the Dneiper, 100 miles west of Kharkov, the army newspaper Red Star disclosed today.

This new advance placed Soviet troops 15 miles west of Zenkov the farthest point previously announce as gained by the Russians in their westward push.

Only a few hours earlier a Soviet communique announced that Russian forces had struck toward the west in a new sector, overwhelming the German defenses at Sevsk midway between and west of Orel and Belgorod.

After blowing up bridges over the Psel and leaving the Russians in control of the east bank, the Germans appeared to be attempting to erect a powerful defense line on the west bank in an effort to halt the Red army offensive there.

Red Star said the Russian approach to the east bank of the Psel and the development of a battle between the Psel and the Vorskla constituted "the most important event of recent days in the sector northwest of Kharkov."

The new drive resulting in the capture of Sevsk is the fourth major push undertaken by the Red army since the summer offensive began July 5.

The new advances place the Russians almost 500 miles from Stalingrad, where last winter's far-reaching drive began, and carried them to a point [illegible] half way from Moscow to the Polish border.

New Super-Fuel Boosts Power of Planes By Half

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28—America now can produce a super-gas that will boost airplane engine power 50 per cent.

The gas can be blended with the usual 200-octane aircraft gasoline to increase power somewhat, but engines must be made over before they can use the new fuel undiluted.

Dr. Gustav Egloff made public the discovery of the new production process.

Dr. Egloff told the northern California post-war conference of the National Association of Manufacturers that the gas was called "triptane" to "conceal research" made in the development of the process.

Chemists, he said, have known of the gas for seven years, but until now, industry has not been able to produce the fuel in quantity.

The first gallon cost $3,000. Now the pilot plant has been turning out the fuel continuously for a week at a cost of less than $1 a gallon. They hope to get it down to 50 cents.

"Planes fueled with this newly available product of the free enterprise system," Dr. Egloff asserted, "will have enemy planes as much at their mercy as if they were roosting pigeons.

"It will add 50 per cent to the power of airplane engines. It will enable a plane to climb faster, fly faster and carry a heavier load.

"Planes can carry armor twice as thick—so flak will bounce off."

TONS OF BOMBS RAINED ON NAZI FACTORY CITY

33 Bombers Lost; RAF Planes Hammer Other Points in Germany.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 28—Immense formations of British bombers said by coastal observers to be the greatest force ever sent over Germany hushed Nuernberg last night, throwing down hundreds of tons of explosives on that southern German industrial city and center of Nazidom.

The air ministry called it a "very heavy attack"—which meant that the British threw in an assault intended virtually to obliterate the targets.

It was a night of wide operations from this great air base—with Mosquito attacks on the Ruhr, fighter and intruder sweeps against railways and axis airfields in France and the low countries. Thirty-three British bombers were lost.

The Nazi-controlled Vichy radio reported the RAF was over northern France again this morning, but there was no confirmation of this.

The Nuernberg attack was the RAF'S second major assault of the week, Berlin having been blasted on a colossal scale Monday night, and with fire and bursting steel last night's raid answered the declaration by Nazi Labor Chief Robert Ley:

"Owing to its formidable position, Nuernberg is well-protected against air attacks."

1,100-Mile Flight

It was a round-trip flight of about 1,100 miles—an operation of such tremendous forces as to stir the whole of England and particularly coastal watchers who heard the unbroken, muted growl of bomber engines for more than two hours. There was wide unofficial agreement that the RAF never before had thrown so much at the enemy across the channel at one time.

Shortly before the British formations swept out, U. S. Eighth air force Flying Fortresses, Marauders and fighters returned from large scale attacks against axis airfields in France. Sixteen enemy fighters were reported destroyed in this daylight foray.

Nuernberg, in southeast Germany 525 miles from Britain, has been raided seven times previously, the last on Aug. 10.

The city, in addition to being a railway junction, is one of the most important strategic points in Germany's electrical supply system and an industrial center whose factories produce Diesel engines for submarines and tanks. Nazi party rallies are held there in peacetime.

German Stations Silent

German radio stations including Deutschlandsender, which serves the Berlin area, went off the air around midnight. The Daily Sketch said listeners reported that only Austrian and Czech stations were on the air at 1 a. m.

The British attack started shortly after dusk when large formations of Flying Fortresses, escorted by P-47's and RAF Spitfires, returned from attacks on German airfields and factories in occupied Europe.

Dawn was breaking when the last of the RAF bombers crossed the straits on their return trip. As they neared back for two hours, fierce anti-aircraft fire was sent up by the Germans from the French side of the channel.

BULGARIA KING GRAVELY ILL

Assassination Plot Not Confirmed; Row with Hitler Is Reported.

By The Associated Press

BERN, Switzerland, Aug. 28—A Sofia dispatch to the Gazette De Lausanne said today that "it appeared certain" that the illness of King Boris of Bulgaria "would have as a consequence his abdication."

It was said that Premier Bogdan Philov was already working on the problem of succession. The telephoned dispatch passed the censorship at Vienna. It guardedly declared that the nature of the illness was unkown.

No responsible informant here would confirm the rumor that the king had been shot, a report that was published abroad.

The Bulgarian legation said the monarch had suffered a heart attack after first saying it did not know the cause of the illness. Other quarters lacked information.

The Gazette De Lausanne declared that the "announced aggravation" of the king's illness had inspired "agitation without parallel among Bulgarian political circles."

It said the first impression had been that the king's illness was "diplomatic" because the "king upon his return from Germany expressed the intention to decrease the pro-axis policy."

The king's decision was said to have been reached upon conclusion that it would be dangerous for his dynasty to comply with the new Nazi demands, including total military and economic mobilization, creation of a new fortified line on the Turkish frontier and giving full police powers to

Italy's Southern Railway Lines Knocked Out By Allied Bombs

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 28—Southern Italy's entire railway system has been disorganized by relentless Allied bombings, with train traffic brought almost to a standstill, it was disclosed at headquarters today.

The railroads are a kingpin in Italy's defenses.

The announcement followed a heavy blast by U. S. Flying Fortresses yesterday at railroad yards at Salmona, nearly 100 miles east of Rome, for the first time, and Mitchell bomber attacks on congested freight yards and locomotive works at Benevento near Naples.

At the same time, American B-26 Marauders bombed the rail yards at Caserta also in Naples vicinity, and light and medium bombers including A-36 fighter bombers attacked targets at Catanzaro, Siberi, Cetraro and Paola.

Enemy fighter resistance increased over the vital rail centers, and 20 enemy planes were shot down, allied headquarters declared.

The worst beating was administered to the Germans by the Mitchells, which sent 16 Nazi planes crashing to the ground out of a total of 40 to 50 fighters which sought to turn back the bombers and their P-38 escort.

Fighter-Defense Strong

Almost two dozen fighters also pounced on the Fortresses which likewise were escorted by Lightnings.

In the Caserta attack, 35 to 45 fighters came up to intercept the Marauders but they were driven off by Lightnings.

The day's operations also included attacks by fighter-bombers on gun positions near Reggio Calabria from which the enemy has been shelling the Messina area of Sicily, and RAF Wellingtons followed up last night by

NAVY CARRIES BRUNT OF WAR IN PACIFIC

By The Associated Press

HAMILTON, N. Y., Aug. 28—Naval sea-air power "will continue to supply the big punch in the Pacific until United States troops have landed on the shores of Japan," Navy Secretary Frank Knox declared today.

Addressing a Colgate university Navy convocation-college commencement program at which he received an honorary doctorate of laws, Knox added in his prepared speech:

"Since the day of Pearl Harbor, the bulk of the navy's fighting sea and air power has been employed in the Pacific theater, and will remain there until Tojo's final day of defeat.

"There has, of course, been considerable naval activity in the Atlantic theater, such as convoying, guarding our coastlines, safeguarding troops and equipment to foreign shores, and assisting in the victorious landings in Africa and Sicily.

* * *

"But the fact remains that the main sea warfare of this conflict has been fought in the Pacific against a powerful Japanese enemy.

* * *. The navy has assigned the bulk of its new combat ships to the battle against the Japanese * * * in this present war, we are adding to our fleets a warship a day."

No Verdict Yet In Mrs. Long Death

Dr. Edward E. Smith, Franklin county coroner, still withholding a verdict in the death of Mrs. Eli Long, 32, Delaware horsewoman, last night said he wanted to talk to a woman who was reported in the Longs' room in the Neil House shortly before Mrs. Long plunged to her death from a sixth-floor window Tuesday.

Dr. Smith yesterday morning questioned George Robinson, a porter in a downtown 10-cent store, who said he was walking north in High street across from the hotel when he heard a scream and looked up in time to see Mrs. Long fall.

Long told the coroner during an inquest Thursday that there was a knock on the hotel room door and that a woman entered at his bidding, Dr. Smith said. The woman said she was in the wrong room and then left.

Swearing and Profanity

A SERMONETTE
BY REV. J. A. CARRIKER
Pastor of Forest Lawn Presbyterian Church

WE READ in Jeremiah "Because of swearing the land mourneth." Not many of us would name swearing and profanity as contributing factors to a land's unhappiness. But as we are indebted to God for prosperity and happiness, so are we bound to show respect, honor and reverence for His name and all by which He maketh Himself known. Swearing and profanity certainly do not help to pay that debt, but are rather an insulting refusal to acknowledge such an obligation. This is the greatest indictment against the user of profanity. Profanity dishonors one's Maker. "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain; for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain."

Most people who indulge in this slimy practice could hardly have thought the matter through. When they do they find that there is not one good word to be said in its favor. It doesn't make the user any better. It doesn't make him any wiser. It doesn't make him any braver. It doesn't make him more of a gentleman. And it doesn't make him any more to be trusted or believed.

PROFANITY is dirt, slime and filth erupting from a careless, irreverent, impious heart. Most people like clean things. They like to see clean bodies with clean faces and clean clothes. Now supposing everyone you met had dirty faces and wore dirty clothes, what a scummy people we would be! But a clean outside is not nearly so important as a clean inside. Jesus said "It is not what goes into a man that defiles him but what comes out of him." And He added, "But those things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart; and they defile a man." So profanity defiles a man, as well as dishonoring his Maker.

What does the user of profanity gain? A man may steal to satisfy his hunger, he may tell a lie hoping to gain by deception, he may get drunk to satisfy his appetite, but what does he gain by using profanity? Someone has said "Most sinners serve the devil for pay, but swearers serve the devil gratis." The person who uses profanity is camping on the devil's doorstep. Wittingly or unwittingly he is the devil's messenger boy when he uses the devil's language.

HERE is a quotation from one of General George Washington's Army Orders to his officers. "I am sorry to be informed that the foolish and wicked practice of profane swearing, a vice hitherto little known in an American army, is growing into fashion. I hope that the officers will by example and influence endeavor to check it; and that both they and the men will reflect, that we have little hope of the blessing of God on our arms, if we insult Him by our impiety and folly. Added to this it is a vice, so mean and low, without temptation, that every man of sense and character detests and despises it. It was traits like this which made George Washington truly great. It was men like George Washington who made America great. And America will remain great only with men and women of noble character like our first President.

Stalin Writes to "Gospodin" Cassidy

STALIN was never known for loquacity. The fact of the matter, a phrase he often used when he did consent to speak, was that he very seldom spoke, and then only for a definite purpose. Likewise, he very seldom wrote. The fact of this matter was that he irritated ambassadors and ministers endlessly by ignoring their notes and letters.

So I was exceedingly surprised to receive a short letter from him. I was not at all surprised after reading its one hundred and forty-nine Russian words, counting salutation, signature, and date, to have it become an international sensation.

It happened this way:

Stalin had just received Churchill. Stalin had just received Willkie. My New York office conceived the idea that it was time Stalin received Cassidy.

So New York telegraphed:

CASSIDY VIEW WILLKIES STATEMENT TRY UTMOST GET STALIN INTERVIEW OR FAILING THAT SUBMIT WRITTEN QUESTIONS SECOND FRONT ALLIED AID SOVIET ABILITY RESIST ETCETERA ASSOCIATED.

That telegram was sent September 28. It annoyed me. I had made many requests to Stalin for an interview or statement, during my two years in Moscow. I had written a beautiful letter, on the previous June 4, telling Stalin I had just been out to see American tanks and planes going into service on the Russian front, and suggesting that a declaration by him on American aid would be most welcome. I had had no answer. Now, New York had suddenly thought up the same idea. I stuffed the telegram into my pocket and forgot about it.

A few days later, while returning from the morning's work at the foreign commissariat to the Hotel Metropole for lunch, I remembered the telegram. There were ten minutes before the dining room opened at 2 P. M., so I sat down at the typewriter in our hotel room and punched out a letter.

I gave the original of the letter to George Green, our young afternoon secretary, and asked him to drop it sometime at the mail receiving room in the southwest gate of the Kremlin. I put a carbon copy, with New York's telegram, in the files at our apartment, under the heading, 'Miscellaneous correspondence.'

At 11.45 p. m. the next night, I was just engaging in my nightly debate with myself on the proposition, should I go to bed now or read awhile longer, when the telephone rang. It was a girl secretary of the foreign commissariat press department, who said: 'Mr. Palgunov asks you to come to the Narkomindiel immediately. It is very important.'

'All right,' I said, in pained resignation. I'll come. But it will take me forty-five minutes to walk there.'

WHEN I reached the press office, the girl secretary dashed out of her cubbyhole to identify me, ducked back into Palgunov's sanctum to announce me, and escorted me into the presence. Palgunov was standing behind his enormous desk, his eyes bulging farther than ever. He emerged to the center of the room, shook hands, waved me into one leather armchair in front of the desk and sat himself in another.

He squinted at me through his thick lgasses, and, with an expression that might have been either suspicion, or awe, or both, said:

'The document that you are waiting for is here.'

'What document?' I was tempted to say, but by then I knew. For Palgunov reached over to his desk, picked up a paper, and handed it to me. Across the bottom of it, in violet ink, was the clear, bold, unmistakable signature, JJ. Stalin. With it he handed me an authorized English translation of the letter. It said:

Dear Mr. Cassidy,—

Owing to pressure of work and consequent inability to grant you an interview, I shall confine myself to a brief written answer to your questions.

1. 'What place does the possibility of a second frond occupy in Soviet estimates of the current situation?'

Answer. A very important, one might say, a prime place.

2. 'To what extent is Allied aid to the Soviet Union proving effective and what could be done to amplify and improve this aid?

Answer. As compared with the aid which the Soviet Union is giving to the Allies by drawing upon itself the main forces of the German Fascist armies, the aid of the Allies to the Soviet Union has so far been little effective. In order to amplify and improve this aid, only one thing is required: the full and prompt fulfillment by the Allies of their obligations.

3. 'What remains the Soviet capacity for resistance?'

Answer. I think that the Soviet capacity of resisting the German brigands is in strength not less, if not greater, than the capacity of Fascist Germany or of any other aggressive power to secure for its world domination.

With respect
(Signed) J. STALIN
October 3, 1942.

The original letter in Russian was on paper so plain that it was startling. It was pure white, with no watermark, no heading, nothing to indicate its origin except the signature. It started out bluntly, not 'Dear Mr. Cassidy,' as the translation put it, but 'Gospodin Cassidy'! or 'Mister Cassidy!' The text was typed in Russian characters. It was an unusual document.

All this I took in, while Palgunov stared at me and probably wondered how it had happened. I did not tell him.

'This is very nice,' I said, 'this gives me great pleasure,' which was a masterpiece of understatement. We shook hands and I left hurriedly.

The letter appeared the next morning at the top of page one of Pravda above the Soviet Information Bureau communique, with an enormous heading 'Replies of Comrade J. V. Stalin to the questions of the correspondent of the American agency Associated Press.' Telegrams started to arrive from Kent Cooper, general manager of the A.P., who does not often hand out bouquets, 'congratulations grand achievement getting Stalin letter which published world-wide'; and from many others.

ADMIRAL STANDLEY held a press conference Tuesday evening and announced he was taking off Thursday for Washington to confer with President Roosevelt. The ambassador issued a carefully worded statement that he was going home to talk over 'ways and means of coordinating to the utmost the war efforts of the United States and the Soviet Union.' Talking to us, he made plain he was flying the Atlantic at the age of seventy because 'somebody has dropped a monkey wrench in the machinery somewhere.' That was part of it, although the main reason for his trip was an outgrowth of Willkie's visit.

Wednesday's Soviet papers carried foreign press reaction to the letter. Thursday, they reported Churchill had been questioned on it in the House of Commons. Willkie had expressed hope it would receive widespread attention, and Sumner Wells had commented that military problems should be discussed privately by governments, not publicly by the press and people.

With that I entirely agreed. Of all people to be involved in the second-front controversy, I was among the strangest who could have been selected. As correspondent for the A.P., it was my job to report facts objectively and impartially. That I did. If a Soviet authority made a pronouncement on the second front, I reported it. But I engaged in no campaign of my own.

To the Russians, however, [illegible] something of a [illegible], not only as the man to [illegible] Stalin had written a letter, the correspondent who had [illegible] to raise his voice in [illegible] second front. The store [illegible] e[illegible] which had been [illegible] sales of wine to a single [illegible] heaped four in the arm [illegible] main. My automobile [illegible] from Kuibyshev in two [illegible] a flatcar, hitched to the passenger train in the [illegible] Union. Russian friends phoned to congratulate me, though one, a bareback [illegible] the state circus, couldn't [illegible] stand why I should ask [illegible] about the Soviet power [illegible] sistance, when everyone [illegible] how strong it was.

A few days later a new E[illegible] correspondent was stopp[illegible] in the hotel corridor and [illegible] 'I say, old boy, when one responds with Stalin, [illegible] one deliver the letter?' And trying to think of a new [illegible] myself.

CLEVELAND CLOSES DOORS TO MIGRANTS

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 28—Cleveland will close its doors to migrant workers for 60 days, starting Aug. 31, the war manpower commission's local labor-management committee decided yesterday.

Dr. William P. Edmunds, WMC director here, said the committee would take inventory at the end of the 60 days to determine whether the ban should be removed or continued.

The WMC committee viewed the ban as necessary to relieve congested housing conditions and lighten other burdens imposed by the heavy influx of men and women from other labor market areas.

Dr. Edmunds said other cities would be notified that Cleveland is off the market for in-migrant workers and such persons would not be cleared through the local U. S. employment service office for jobs in Cleveland industries.

Commenting on recent census bureau figures showing Greater Cleveland's population last March 1 was nearly 30,000 below that on April 1, 1940, Howard Whipple Green, census bureau consultant, said the decrease had done nothing to relieve housing conditions.

"A great part of the decrease results from the induction of more than 100,000 men from Cuyahoga county into the armed forces," he observed. "Many of these are men with families which have not vacated their homes, and therefore very few houses have been released."

He estimated the in-migration from April, 1940, to last March 1 as 35,000, but reckoned the rate increased since that time. There is no estimate on out-migration, except those entering the armed forces. Inductees up to last March 1 totaled 89,500 for Cuyahoga county and the number now is estimated at 112,000. The 1940 census figures show that while Cleveland's population has been gradually declining, suburban populations have so increased that the result is an over-all gain for Cuyahoga county.

18 Americans Battle Through Jungle After Surviving Crash

By The Associated Press

A JUNGLE VILLAGE IN INDIA, Aug. 22—(Delayed)—Throbbing native drums broadcast through monsoon - drenched jungles today that 18 American survivors of the crash of a U. S. transport plane were making the long journey back to civilization.

(Word reached the United States last night that the party had arrived at a town in India.)

Moving slowly towards this outpost in single file procession were Eric Sevareid, Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent; John Davies Jr., second secretary of the American embassy in Chungking; William L. Stanton of the U. S. office of economic warfare; 15 American Army officers and enlisted men. With them are three air transport command Army men who parachuted to the party with medical supplies and one American member of a ground rescue party.

Several days back along the trail, the body of co-Pilot Charles William Felix of Compton, Calif., only man killed in the plane crash, lay buried beside the tiny village where the party gathered after bailing out when their plane developed motor trouble Aug. 2 and was unable to return to its base.

The co-pilot was killed, it was believed, when his parachute caught on the tail of his plane and carried him to the ground.

All of the passengers and the rest of the crew landed safely.

While the passengers were bailing out, the pilot gave the position of the plane. Forty minutes later an air transport command plane took off and 80 minutes later found the party on the ground.

Tenth U. S. Army Air Force authorities took charge of organizing a ground rescue party, headed by a British political agent, which took many days to reach the survivors.

The rescue party blazed a trail through the virgin jungles and is now returning along the trail they marked when they pioneered into the wildest of mountains climbing 6,000 feet.

American Army personnel who survived the crash included:

Cpl. Edward Holland of Cleveland, O.

OHIO FARM LAND GAINS 28 PER CENT

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 28 — Ohio farm lands by rising in price 28 per cent since 1939 are increasing in value faster than the average for all farm land in the U. S., where the average rise has been only 15 per cent in the three and one-half years. Rural economists at Ohio State University say this situation is reversed from the trend during and after War I, when Ohio farms rose 59 per cent in value but all U. S. farm land increased 76 per cent.

The rise in value of Ohio farm land stopped in 1920; and then there was an almost continuous decline for 13 years. All the gains in value of farms since 1933 to the present have brought land values only back to the point where they were when World War I started.

Prices for farm land are based largely upon the buyer's judgement of the income he can obtain from that land; but, when values begin to rise, there always are speculators who buy farms with the expectation of making a profit from reselling them. This speculative buying gives an artificial stimulus to farm real estate prices.

Land speculators usually are risking only money. People who buy land with the expectation of making farming a business risk their money and years of working time if they pay more for the land than it is worth. Farms which had been in the hands of Ohio families for three or four generations were lost through forced sales after World War I.

No economist can tell how much any individual can make from a farm. Some farmers can make more from one piece of land than other men could. The economists, however, advise every Ohio farmer to consider well before encumbering present land holdings with heavy mortgages indebtedness in order to get funds to buy more land.

Frozen Chicken Dinner in Prospect After War

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 — The postwar housewife may be able to ask the grocer for "a frozen chicken dinner for six," thaw it, heat it, and invite the guests to sit down.

That's merely one possibility predicted for frozen foods at an investment forum on the food industry, sponsored by the magazine, Trusts and Estates.

Dehydrated foods also have bright prospects, despite what happened after the last war, when they virtually were eliminated from the market because there was little demand for them.

Lewis W. Waters, vice president of General Foods Corp., said chief obstacles dehydration must surmount are those of changed taste and appearance.

Waters said items most promising for dehydration are mashed potatoes, to which only hot milk or water need be added; soups, which already are on grocery shelves; baked beans, and citrus fruit juices.

E. J. Mather, vice president of National Dairy Products Corp., said it was likely dehydrated whole milk would become an important competition to the fluid product in some markets, particularly exports.

Make It LAST!

Your Electric Iron

By GLADYS DEGNER
Associated Press Writer

Your electric iron is another item that has to last. They're not making 'em any more. The materials are being used to iron out wrinkles on the battlefronts all over the world.

Let's check up to see if you're taking good care of yours. With proper care and use, it should serve you for a long time to come.

Do you keep it perfectly clean? You can do this easily by simply wiping it off with a damp cloth—when it's cool. If necessary, remove starch that might have stuck to the sole of your iron with soapsuds, or a mild abrasive. Then wipe it with a clean, damp cloth. Never — never — immerse your iron in water.

How about the cord? If it is detachable, roll the cord up loosely and hang it over a hook. Avoid sharp kinks in the cord. They may break the wires. Always disconnect the cord at the wall outlet first. Take hold of the plug, not the cord, when you remove it. If your iron has a permanently attached cord, cool the iron before you coil the cord around the handle.

Where do you store your iron? Choose a convenient spot so there's no chance of a fall when you take it down. Dropping is more harmful to an iron than any other hazard. Be sure it's cool before you put your iron away.

What about scratches? They can be avoided by not ironing over buttons, hooks, zippers and such.

Last, but not least, always disconnect your iron when you leave it. Stand it up, or put it on its stand even when you answer the phone. You may talk longer than you expect, in which case the iron may overheat.

LOW COST TO MARK POST-WAR PLUMBING

Plumbing and sanitary fixtures of the immediate post-war era will be little changed from those manufactured before the war began, delegates to the sixty-first annual convention of the National Association of Master Plumbers in Chicago were told by manufacturers.

The transition to new wmaterials and new designs after peace comes will be gradual, the manufacturers told their plumber-customers. The change will be a process of evolution and improvement and the manufacturers reminded the plumbers that changes in the industry have always come slowly.

A return to the manufacturing of iron bathtubs "as soon as the government feels it can wisely release the raw materials" was predicted.

According to speakers at the convention, the plumbing industry has found materials such as iron, steel, ceramics, lead and copper so satisfactory in the manufacture of plumbing fixtures, pipe, and fittings, that the early and extensive use of other materials, at least on the basis of the present outlook seems unlikely.

Said one of the speakers: "The use of other materials for baths may come, but glass, plastics, plywood, aluminum or other materials will require experimenting and testing of materials, processes, and public acceptance. There are in all materials definite limitations as to applications."

The important thing, said one of the manufacturers, will be "low cost to attract a big market."

Blackjack Squad Makes Reputation in New Georgia

By The Associated Press

GUADALCANAL, (Delayed)—The Blackjack fighter squadron's men know they're good. There's nothing of conceit about it.

Their quiet, matter-of-fact confidence is something that doesn't need talking about.

The Blackjacks, a U. S. Navy fighter squadron commanded by Lt. Cmdr. Charles H. (Whitey) Ostrom, Miami, Fla., proved themselves in a hurry.

Flying F4F Grumman Wildcats, they were born as a squadron organization last May 15, and fought their first air battle June 30. The overwhelming American victory of that day — 103 Jap planes destroyed against 12 of ours lost—decisively clipped the enemy's air strength in the Solomons at the outset of the New Georgia invasion.

The Blackjacks score was 32 Japs shot down, two pilots lost. They built their score in one month to a total of 60. Nine of their fliers were lost or listed as missing in action. Some of the missing have a chance to get back.

The Blackjacks' F4F's didn't come near the enemy's Zero in speed, maneuverability or climb. But the F4F is a slugger in firepower.

Squadron members many of whom have "probables" because they couldn't see the crash, include R. L. Straub, Mansfield, O.

Some Suggestions for Painting Metal

When applying protective coatings to iron and steel, all rusty and rough edges should be coated evenly and completely.

A sensible practice is to brush the paint in the direction of the rivets and rough edges, rather than away from them to avoid filling all cracks or small holes in the metal.

Prior to painting, the metal should be thoroughly cleaned to make sure that it is free from dirt and grease, salt or other chemical deposits.

TRANSPORTATION OF STOCK HANDICAPPED

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 28 — The Bureau of Agricultural Economics said today that the livestock transportation situation under wartime conditions "may become critical by fall."

Emphasizing the use of railroads in place of motor transportation for livestock, the bureau said, "with shortages of tires, gasoline and motor trucks reducing the volume of motor transportation of livestock, a renewed dependence upon rail transportation is being felt by producers in many areas."

The government agency explained that before the war, transportation had been shifted rapidly from rail to motor truck and that by 1941 a large part of the supply that was received at important public stockyards in the country came by truck.

However, with the few new motor trucks available and with the present difficulty in getting repairs, the bureau said, "something of a reverse swing is under way," and, "programs for truck conservation have been put into effect in many sections."

The agency said, "local rail stockyards in some areas apparently need repairs if they are to be used more extensively," and, "many towns have no stockyards, chiefly because old yards have been abandoned."

If repairs are needed to make existing yards usable, or if more yards are needed, the government urged that "steps should be taken to provide them."

"Some shift to rail transportation has been made, and more can be expected," the bureau said "and under the circumstances this type of change should be encouraged, particularly as it applies to livestock moving longer distances."

Choice fed steers and yearlings were strong to 25 cents up this week. All other grades were fully 25 cents, and instances of 50 cents up. Hogs were 15 cents above last Friday's top, and increased receipts of salable sheep and lambs sold strong to 25 cents higher during the week.

Ridges, Not Cities, Scene Of Heaviest Fighting in Sicily

By HAROLD V. BOYLE
By The Associated Press

WITH THE AFF IN SICILY — Leaves from a war correspondent's notebook:

The capture of an enemy city is always something of a spectacular event, as in the case of Bandazzo.

The approaches are mined and booby trapped so the entering army must proceed with extreme caution. Once in a city, the troops in Sicily at least have been hailed as deliverers. Wine appears as if by magic as the soldiers enjoy a rare sense of exhilaration at being once more in a town. Battle problems are momentarily over.

From a military standpoint however, the taking of a city is usually less important than the storming or the enveloping of a ridge mountain or other high ground. Land warfare practically boils down to the question of how you can best push the other fellow off a hill and shoot down on him.

The German is particularly adept at using every promontory. He seems to have an inexhaustible supply of high ground, and the story of every campaign remaining against him will be the story of how he is pushed back ridge after ridge until he runs out of them and must die or surrender. Judging from his reaction in the North African campaign, he will give up when he is convinced the situation is militarily hopeless. The troubles lie in convincing the fellow.

If the Italians defended their cities with the same stubborn zeal and ferocity, yielding doorway by bloody doorway, the steady progress of American troops through the island's historic towns would have been much slower. Yankee soldiers have been thoroughly schooled in street fighting, but happily have had to make little use of it.

The cities have dropped like ripe plums. It was on the ridges that the victory was won the bitter hard way. Palermo, largest city on the island, was abandoned by the Germans after the Americans drove through the mountains and threatened to cut them off from behind. When the Nazis were battered off "Bloody Ridge" west of San Stefano the undefended city then fell on its own weight.

Some of the heaviest fighting engaged in by American troops since the first World War took place before Troina, situated on a peak 1,120 meters high. Yet when the doughboys finally worked their way to the top of Mount San Silvestro, a peak 1,150 meters high to the northwest, the end was in sight. The German does not linger long when you can overlook his position. Randazzo fell the same way as Troina.

• • •

Capt. Clarence L. Gilbert of Burlingame, Calif., was too busy fighting to be embarrassed during a recent engagement when a piece of shrapnel ripped out the seat of his pants. He wasn't even bruised. But while we are on the subject of narrow escapes, consider the case of a Third division truck driver who was blown bodily through the roof of the cab when a large rubber shell expended by the side of his vehicle. Amazed doctors who examined him from head to foot found no external sign of injury.

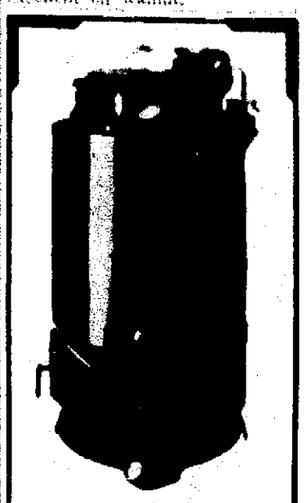

"This man deserves a purple heart award if ever any man did," said one doctor, but another pointed out there was no wound.

"We'll fix that" said the first doctor. "Bend over" then he knocked the truck driver's bottom with a scalpel. The doctor cut himself a heart.

Building Quiz

Q. How can I refinish a black walnut antique chair? I have removed all the varnish.

A. If you wish a high gloss, finish the chair with three coats of top-quality, quick-drying varnish. Dull the gloss of the first two coats by rubbing lightly with very fine sandpaper, and wipe off the dust. Another method would be to give the wood a coat of white shellac thinned half and half with denatured alcohol, and finish with two thin, even coats of paste wax; allow each coat to dry before rubbing. A penetrating wax finish also would be excellent on walnut.

An Outstanding Fair Program

MORE than 90 years have come and gone since the first Marion county fair took place and during most of this time it has been a tradition to announce that each year this great community event would be "bigger and better than ever."

Then came a period, along about 10 or 15 years ago, when a lag developed and there were actually predictions that county fairs were through. General opinion was that before long they would pass out of existence and fairgrounds would be converted to other purposes.

This did happen in some communities, but not in Marion county. Here there was conviction that the only thing needed was to alter the fair program so that it would conform to the modern trend, with entertainment varied to fit into the tempo of the times. That proved to be true. New features were introduced and enough of the old were retained to make the annual program a blending of the old-fashioned and modern attractions that would satisfy everybody. As a result the Marion county fair not only survived but grew more successful during the last decade.

Now comes the 83rd of these annual events and there is every reason for reviving the announcement that it will be "bigger and better" than any of its predecessors.

It will get under way tomorrow with a program considerably different from any in the fair's history. Military features will be outstanding among the opening day's entertainment and that is notably appropriate in this war year and especially at a time when the American armed forces and their allies are making such thrilling advances on the road to victory.

The program for the remainder of the week offers numerous outstanding entertainment attractions, and with weather conditions favorable, there ought to be a record set in attendance figures.

National Defense in Depth

CLARENCE BUDINGTON KELLAND'S blueprint for American foreign policy, the most concrete proposal for international security to come out of the discussion of that subject so far, calls for national defense in depth.

Collaboration among the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China and, later, France, would furnish the meeting of minds for post-war reconstruction. Military alliances among the dominant powers would secure peace. A permanent alliance between the United States and Great Britain would be an open acknowledgment of their mutual interests. Further measures to develop Pan-Americanism would recognize the inherent necessity for unity of the western hemisphere. Finally, the United States, itself, would guarantee the individual security by maintenance of strong fighting forces strategically located to discourage future plots of aggression against its own territory.

Key to Mr. Kelland's proposal, expected to be the starting point for development of a definitive Republican statement on post-war foreign policy, is its distinction between collaboration and amalgamation. The United States, he believes, should strive for international security through an increasing exercise of its sovereign power, in collaboration with other dominant powers; it should not permit amalgamation of its sovereignty in a world superstate.

Speaking as a Republican national committeeman and former publicity chairman for his party's national committee, Mr. Kelland is going to cause nightmares for Democrats dreaming of pinning an isolation kick-me tag on every Republican coat tail in 1944. What he proposes and what most Americans propose, regardless of party, is a future foreign policy that will put as much faith in alliances as they deserve, but will depend in the final analysis on keeping America's powder dry. If the phrase twisters can torture that into isolation, it's still what America wants.

Private Post-War Plans

GOVERNMENT and industry are deep in post-war planning and it's not a minute too early for workers to map their own course for the days when the nation is returning to peacetime pursuits.

A considerable period of unemployment is inevitable. In normal time the automobile industry took several weeks off for retooling for its new models. The same thing will apply on a nationwide scale in the months after Victory.

All big industry is set up on war production and when the war ends it will change over to civilian needs and there will be a long period when workers will be idle before the flood of civilian goods can start from the factories.

Unemployment insurance will help to tide the workers over that period but it will be only a pittance in comparison with the fat wartime pay envelopes.

The wise worker already has planned by this time what he is going to do when the war ends, where he is going to live and how he is going to finance himself and his family until the wheels start turning again.

One of his most valuable assets then will be a good record at the plant. Workers who have given value received during the wartime production will be remembered when the whistle blows again to call the employes to the pursuits of peace.

Today and Tomorrow

Russia's Position Clarified by Quebec Developments; Stalin Realistic.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE JOINT statement at Quebec [illegible] carefully, makes clear the real state of things among the four great powers. [illegible] Britain and America are at war in Europe and Asia. Russia is at war only in Europe. China is at war only in Asia.

Therefore the very important part of the war against Japan required the participation of T. V. Soong, particularly because an important part of that war must be mounted on Chinese soil. But Stalin could not have participated in these discussions. It would obviously have been desirable if he had participated in these discussions. It would obviously have been desirable if he had participated in the discussions about the European war. But it was not essential. For the Russian forces and our own fight in separate theaters under separate commands.

Moreover, Britain and America are fighting all over the world, from the Aleutians to the Mediterranean, with combined forces under common command. This makes the British-American connection more than an ordinary alliance. It is an intricate partnership, and this means that British and American authorities must be in continual consultation.

Future Conference

Thus the Quebec statement announces that there will be another British-American conference before the end of this year "in addition to"—let us note the words—"in addition to any tripartite meeting which it may be possible to arrange with Soviet Russia."

If we bear in mind this controlling fact that within the four great powers of our alliance, there is a British-American partnership, we shall understand much better the problems which lie ahead. Our grand objective is to organize in the war against our common enemies an enduring association among the United Nations.

We ought long since have learned from our experience with Soviet Russia the clew to the Russian mystery; it is that we are always very mystified because the rulers of Russia are so exceedingly, and often so rudely, matter-of-fact about Russia's interests.

We shall then begin to see why the fervent pleas that Stalin must meet Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill somewhere have hitherto been unavailing. For the fact is that the great meeting will not be held in order to reach an agreement. It will be held when an agreement is certain. Stalin is not going to negotiate face to face with two English-speaking statesmen who are intimate personal friends. What Stalin has told us, and it makes perfect sense, is that if and when we have reached the basis of an agreement with him, he will then go to a meeting to consummate it and celebrate it.

It may be possible to arrange it if through preliminary negotiations the three governments can agree upon the terms of peace for our enemies and upon the frontiers and alliances and transitional governments in Europe as a whole.

Big Question

The great question on which the negotiations will turn is whether Germany, which is the heart of the continent, is to be policed by all the United Nations or whether Europe is to become an arena of conflict between Russian influence from the east and British-American influence from the west.

If we can unite in order to restrain Germany, we can unite Europe and Europe will bind together the Russians and ourselves. If we cannot agree about Germany, then we shall engender a deep dispute as to whether the Russians or the British-Americans are to draw Germany into their orbit. The seeds of that dispute, which can wreck the peace, were sown when we proposed unconditional surrender and AMG for Germany, whereas the Russians set up a "Free German" committee in Moscow.

The eradication of that dispute is, therefore, fundamental and, considering the pace of the war, absolutely urgent. It is by no means impossible to do this, provided we abjure wishful and fearful thinking and deal with the Russians realistically. To deal with them realistically is to tailor our politics to our power, making no pretensions where we have not the means to act, standing firm where we have.

Fight Looms on Father Draft

Likely To Be First in Next Session of Congress.

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—Capitol observers are giving odds that the first big congressional scrap after the legislators get back will be over the draft of fathers.

The reason is quite simple: war manpower and selective service are making a last ditch stand to avoid a universal draft of labor. By the reclassification of essential (or unessential, if you want to put it that way) jobs and threat to pre-Pearl Harbor fathers to pull them into the armed services they hope to drive enough men and women to war industries to take up the growing slack in the vital trades.

Sen. Wheeler

Some members of congress are up in arms against this kind of double-dealing.

They can make out a whale of a case. By ignoring the seriousness of the essential labor situation altogether, they can concentrate their argument on the contention that the armed forces are already larger than will ever be needed and leave WMC and SS very little ground to stand on.

Wheeler's Views.

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, (D-Mont.) one of the most outspoken in the move to exempt fathers, sums it up this way: "Military men alone are not qualified to be sole judges of how large an army the nation should have.

"When we talk about the size of the Army, it is not a question of how many men we can get, but rather how many men we can afford to put into the Army without seriously disrupting our supply lines, defense plans and civilian activities at home."

Rep. Andrew J. May, (D-Ky.) chairman of the house military affairs committee, has promised that his committee will give a thorough airing to the whole draft-father picture. There already is more proposed legislation in the congressional hopper than will ever see the light of day, but one bill is almost sure to come in for much discussion. That is the one by Rep. James W. Wadsworth (R.-N. Y.) It's a "universal draft" measure which would provide for registration of both men and women for assignment to the armed forces, essential industry and agriculture—as needed.

Can't Use All.

Even some extremists in the military are admitting privately that we can't use more than a portion of the 10,000,000 or 11,000,000 men now in the armed forces or soon to be. Unless expediency forces the use of vast numbers on the prospective western and southern fronts (something less than half a million men of all Allied Nations were used in North Africa and Sicily) there is hardly a possibility that half of our present planned force will be needed. The war in the Pacific is certain to be, it is said, one principally of sea and air power—not manpower.

That, at least, will be the arguments that opponents of the draft-father movement will put up.

Considering the appeal to the politicians of getting on the "save-the-home" bandwagon, it's almost positive the draft-father movement, even if it should be a military necessity, will find little sympathy "on the Hill."

V-Mail Campaign

The government is currently engaged in what should be the easiest selling campaign in the world. It is trying to persuade all correspondent of fighting men overseas to send their letters by V-mail.

Most persons probably know already the great saving of shipping space that V-mail achieves—space that is being filled by food and medicine and guns and munitions. But those who have not used V-mail may not realize the many advantages it offers.

In the first place, it gives the greatest assurance of delivery. Original letters are kept at the port of embarkation. If a ship or plane carrying the microfilm copies of these letters is destroyed, a duplicate film is made and forwarded immediately.

V-mail also saves the user time, for it has priority over all mail except official dispatches. And it costs no more than ordinary postage.

Many people are using V-mail already, the 100 millionth letter was handled some weeks ago. But the government would like more business.

No Manpower Worry in South

Needs Fully Supplied by Negro Population.

By JOSEPH C. GOODWIN
Associated Press Writer.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 28.—Manpower shortages in war industries hold no terrors for the rapidly expanding shipyards and airplane plants in this southern center for production of instruments of destruction and war transportation.

In the words of George W. Rappleyea, dynamic assistant to Andrew Jackson Higgins, southern pioneer in "assembly line" ship building: "The southern Negro population forms a great untapped reservoir of manpower. Negroes are anxious to help in the war effort. They make good workmen, and we now have approximately 1300 of them in our plants."

Consolidated-Vultee, beginning production of giant flying boats for combatting the submarine menace, also has recognized the nearness of a valuable supply of labor.

"We expect to employ 20 per cent Negro labor when we reach full production," says William D. McAdams, director of public relations. "We will use both men and women, and those showing particular aptitude will be given an opportunity for special schooling in skilled operations in the aircraft industry."

Both Mr. McAdams and Mr. Rappleyea see an added expediency in utilizing labor already available in preference to attempting to bring in labor from other sections of the country.

"In the first place," says Mr. Rappleyea, "the rest of the country is short of war workers now, and, in the second place, the southern Negro—and there are 150,000 of them in the city of New Orleans alone—already is here and has a place to live. That eliminates the housing shortage."

Among Negroes employed by the Higgins industries many already are skilled workmen and others are being trained. Among the trades followed by Negroes in the company's shipyards and plane plants are:

Bricklayers, painters, carpenters and carpenter helpers, welders, cement workers, and foremen over Negro construction gangs building landing barges and cargo boats.

And New Orleans plants have no "race" troubles. Negro and white workers have separate canteens and comfort facilities and work primarily on different projects.

In the words of one industrialist: "The Negro is a good American. He wants to help win the war. He is completely loyal and has no past or present associations with any foreign country. He is one of a 13,000,000 minority and he certainly is needed in the war effort. If the country did not make full use of this ready pool of man power, it would constitute sabotage of the war effort."

Ever Try Seaweed?

Another Chinese food, with possibilities as important as those of soybeans, is seaweed, now under investigation as a possible source of American food at the University of California.

National Geographic Society's news bulletins report that the United States is exploring the coastal waters for edible varieties of seaweed. "Irish Moss," found from Maine to North California, is being raked from the sea and marketed for puddings, medicines, cosmetics and lotions, and also as a stabilizing agent in chocolate drinks.

Seaweed has been used as a fertilizer and a fuel. In Iceland, it has been buried in trenches, tamped into solid form and later chopped into chunks for cattle fodder.

In World war I, the weed was used in this country as a substitute for potash in fertilizer and is being used again for the same purpose now. Agar, derived from seaweed, was imported from Japan before the war for ice creams, sherbets and other uses.

The United States uses algin, made from kelp, in the binder for cartridge primers. Some of the camouflage used by the armed forces also comes from various seaweeds.

Show Must Go On

By The Associated Press

CAMP POLK, La. — Actors of the USO camp show, "Funzafire, were donning costumes and setting up scenery in the outdoor bowl here when a thunderstorm crashed the gate.

Actors and soldier assistants hauled properties and costumes aboard army trucks, whisked them to a nearby camp theater and were "set up" inside 10 minutes. Absolutely no time was lost, because the show had an audience waiting for it. It took over just as the movie ended

Solves Milk Problem

By The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla. — Sgt. Carmolo Papperlardo of Lawrence, Mass., stationed at Drew Field, heard veterans of World War I tell about the jitters that resulted when soldiers in actual gas attacks discover leaks in their gas masks, so he decided to do something about it.

What he did was so well thought of by his superiors that it was sent to Army Air Force headquarters in Washington for approval. Sgt Papperlardo's idea is a compact repair kit containing several types of adhesive patches enabling the soldier to make hasty repairs under gas attack. The chemical warfare service has repair kits but these are issued only to platoons. Papperlardo's kit is the first to be designed for the individual soldier.

California Golfers Will Suffer E[illegible] When U. S. Troops Mass for Big Drive Against Japan.

By DAMON RUNYON

THE climate of the great state of Calif[ornia], as the world must have heard, is re[mark]ably pleasant the year around.

I think the majority of even the m[ost dra]matically rabid Californians will accept [this] as a fair estimate, though a few may [think I] should have left out the adverb.

Anyway, the climate is real nice. The s[un] shines nearly every day in summer and [every] day in winter when the de[w] is not [falling]. The air is warm in daytime and cool at [night]. There is no snow or ice, except in the m[ountain] regions. The California ozone is most hea[lthful].

Thus, the outdoors in California, espe[cially] in the southern part of the state, is quite [pop]ular at all seasons. The citizens are [great] hands for outdoor exercises of various [kinds], notably golf. They have numerous nice [golf] courses, well laid out on hill and dale [and many] of them convenient to easy transportation [and] nearly all equipped with good kitchens.

It would be no great hardship to [live out]doors in California the greater part of [the] year, even without shelter, and with shelter such as a lean-to, or better still a [tent], it might be a pleasure, particularly if [the tent] happened to be pitched in a pretty [spot] like a golf course.

I SUSPECT this thought has occurred [to some] of our army officials lately. It is a sup[position] based partly on rumor and partly on [the fact] with an enormous troop movement [to the] Pacific coast undoubtedly impending [for the] great blow at Japan, and with army eyeing golf courses with a meditative [eye. I] think if I were a California golf addict I [would] be looking for a place to store my n[iblicks] just as a precaution.

There are already huge army camps [on] the Pacific coast, most of them for ind[uction] and training purposes. Yet, big as they [are], they are probably not commodious enou[gh to] handle the prodigious force that is exp[ected] to be massed at our main approach to [Japan] when the plans are all worked out. Nor do [they] have all the convenience to ports of embar[kation] that must be found in other locations.

That is why I suspect that when the [army] moves an invasion force to the west co[ast it] will find most acceptable any large s[tretch] of land requiring no grading, already plumbed, and within marching distance [of em]barkation. I trust I am not sounding a [dis]quieting note to the golfing element of [Cali]fornia. I may be wrong in my suspicions; perhaps they can play through a line of [tents]. The California golfers are said to be [good].

I AM AWARE that the wartime press [code] prohibits mention of troop movements [and] there may be slight technical violation he[re on] my part in suggesting the probable mass[ing of] troops on the Pacific coast.

However, I have been studying the [state]ments from the Quebec conference [and the] promise to destroy Japan, and I am sure [I give] no information to the enemy that the ce[rtain ac]tion will come through invasion of [his] and that he can scarcely be deceived [into] thinking it is going to come from any[where] except our western shore.

I think any news indicating that we [are] at last be making ready to move in for the support of the great MacArthur, [apart] from being of aid and comfort to the e[nemy], is calculated to cheer and inspire the [people] of the Pacific coast, who have viewed [with] great misgivings the comparatively weak [effort] that has been made in that direction so far.

I wish the tidings might trickle throu[gh to] the thousands of our soldiers and civilian prisoners in the hands of the Japanese, dying at a rate that shows that the [fears] of their treatment by their captors [are] not overdrawn. It might renew their [hope] that must have fallen to low ebb in the weary months they have been waiting [for] some word that they have not been forg[otten].

Fire Engines

By Truman Twill

THAT Mayor LaGuardia fellow has se[t] teeth to gnashing with some remarks [about] ornate fire engines. He thinks they will [be re]placed soon by "functional" designs—a[nd] compact.

The red paint, bright work and lazy lettering will disappear. The result will lo[ok like] the dull jobs sifted down to the burgs by [the] dispensation recently for the war emer[gency].

The mayor doesn't say he is in favor o[f it; he] doesn't say he is against it, either. A wor[d to] him, as one of the country's best fire chasers, might save the day. He is bein[g true] to his hobby.

Unless the common people of America [are on] guard, they are going to lose the few pr[ivileges] allowed them by their public officials. [What] they will get for their taxes is "functional" signing when what they want is a run fo[r their] money.

That's what the ornate fire engine gave. Even if it never quenched a blaze, it ear[ned its] keep. It was big, bright, noisy and exp[ensive]. When it rolled down the street, the s[ight made] the taxpayers' hearts pound and the[ir nerve] ends tingle.

It was something for kids to stare at [when] they passed the fire house door. Touching [it was] an adventure like shaking the hand that [shook] the hand of John L. Sullivan. And to ride [it,] well, in all the world, only a few men e[ver rode] on a fire engine.

There was only one thing that could [be com]pared to it, and the fanciest circus wag[on was] a poor substitute for the gleaming [engine] that belonged to the people and, if [luck] smiled, might roll up to the house at the [end of] their block any day.

The ornate fire engine helped to make [taxes] bearable. It gave prestige to the comm[unity] that kept it in the style it deserved. It [was the] setting for the heroic fire laddies who [tamed] the monster and waited on its needs. Ta[xpayers] looked upon their fire engines and found [them] good.

Let the Mayor LaGuardias do their w[orst, if] that's the way they feel, but there w[ill be a] price if the fire engine ever becomes as ["func]tional" as a garbage truck. Left with [nothing] to polish but the well known apples of [duty,] the fire laddies will quit being heroes [and one] of a glorious American era will be in s[hadow].

The public will stand a high price [for effi]ciency, but there is a limit. It wouldn't [trade] one red fire engine with good bright wor[k for a] thousand triumphs of functional design.

So They Say—

So far in this war, we have taken a[s many] prisoners as there were men in the [regular] army at the outset of the war.—Serv[ices of] Supply Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell.

TEST OF SYNTHETIC TIRES STARTS TODAY

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 28 — What was described as the first public test of synthetic rubber tires began on the Indianapolis speedway today when an ersatz-tired automobile started a 500-mile cruise around the famous oval at a steady speed of 35 miles an hour.

Arthur F. Grant, spokesman for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, sponsor of the test, said it had the approval of Rubber Director William Jeffers as the first in a series of similar public demonstrations.

"We already know," said Don Waugh, test supervisod, "that synthetic rubber tires can yield perhaps even better mileage than the best pre-Pearl Harbor natural tires if proper speeds and driving conditions are maintained."

Thirty-six tires will be used on the car during the Indianapolis test and demonstrations on Pike's Peak, the Bonneville flats in Utah, Chicago's streets, cross-country roads of all types, Waugh said. He expected to complete the speedway test late today and then head for Chicago.

A REAL SHORT STORY

A very old but interesting story has come down to us from the Orient.

A company of night travelers in the desert were ordered, by their leader, to dismount and gather a handful of gravel and preserve it until dawn.

At dawn each held, not gravel but precious stones. They were glad they obeyed but sorry they had not taken more.

At age 60, most people feel the same way about their Life Insurance — "Glad they had some—sorry they had not taken more."

The newspaper said many armed police were circulating in the streets of Sofia, and that Premier Bogdan Philov "is occupying himself to arrange the problem of succession which is especially delicate" in view of the youth of Crown Prince Kyril.

It said the chief of the opposition, a man named Mousoumov, "a great friend of the democracies," was participating in the conferences and was standing adamant against any military dictatorship in Bulgaria "such as that by Marshal Premier Pietro Badoglio in Italy."

LONDON, Aug. 28—The condition of King Boris of Bulgaria "continues to be serious," the Berlin radio reported today in a DNB dispatch from Sofia.

A communique quoted by the broadcast which was recorded by The Associated Press said the 49-year-old sovereign "had a quiet night" but that "lung disturbances had not yet been eliminated."

Another DNB dispatch reported that all members of the Bulgarian cabinet, high military officers and members of the King's civilian and military entourage attended services today at the Alexander Nevski cathedral in Sofia at which prayers were offered for the king's recovery.

Istanbul heard wholly-unverified reports that the king suffered a heart attack after an unpleasant two-day conference at the headquarters of Adolf Hitler during which the Nazi leader became enraged and attempted to strike the monarch. Hitler was said to have demanded Bulgarian support in the war against Russia.

GOV. BRICKER OFFERS NEW FARM PROGRAM

By The Associated Press

RAPID CITY, S. D., Aug. 28—Gov. Bricker of Ohio last night proposed a farm program freed of "impractical directives hanging as a millstone around the neck of the producers of farm products."

In a public address, Gov. Bricker said that bureaucracies are hindering American initiative and enterprise, particularly in the field of agriculture, and suggested a five-point farm program. His proposals were:

(1) "That the food problem can be solved by a complete change of procedure on the part of the centralized bureaucratic administration in Washington responsible for the confusion of impractical directives hanging as a millstone around the neck of the producers and distributors of farm products.

(2) "That government restrictions that interfere with the laws of supply and demand, so as to discourage all-out production, be removed.

(3) "All necessary federal directives should be formulated by individuals familiar with agriculture and should be administered locally by individuals capable of an intelligent interpretation of their application.

(4) "That price ceilings on all perishable foods products should be removed to avoid a continuation of heavy losses which have resulted from spoilage on a sluggish market.

(5) "That the most helpful procedure that can be taken is to encourage ever-adequate prices for farm products and make available an adequate supply of farm labor and machinery."

Jones Pledges Farmers Protection on Prices

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 — A pledgtd by War Food Administrator Marvin Jones that food prices would be supported at a level high enough to cover "the added risks and hazards that go with increased production" drew today the commendation of Chairman Fulmer (D-SC) of the house agriculture committee.

Conspicuous by its absence from Jones' address last night was any reference to organized labor's demands for price roll-backs to the consumer. He did, however, say that the mechanics of the 1944 food program would be advanced "step-by-step" with specific support prices disclosed far enough in advance to allow farmers to plan accordingly.

Marion Woman Gets Hearing in Juvenile Court.

A verdict of guilty was returned by the jury in the trial of Mrs. Viola Anthony, 31, of 1095 Cheney avenue, charged with contributing to the dependency and neglect of three minor children, yesterday afternoon in juvenile court. The hearing started Thursday morning, was before Judge Chester Pendleton of Findlay, in the common pleas courtroom. Judge Pendleton did not sentence Mrs. Anthony and said he would take several days for consideration.

Failure to provide proper food, leaving the children to care for themselves and having wild parties in her home were among the charges cited in the prosecution.

Mrs. Anthony, mother of seven children, was arrested by sheriff's deputies on July 7 and later was released on $200 bail. Her children were placed in the county children's home some time ago by order of the juvenile court.

Edwin B. Spohn was Mrs. Anthony's attorney and the case was prosecuted by James E. Reed, county prosecutor and Ralph Carhart, attorney for the Marion County Humane society.

GASOLINE COUPONS STOLEN IN TOLEDO

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 28—Gasoline and fuel oil coupons sufficient to purchase 739,450 gallons of the fluids have been stolen from two local rationing boards here during the month of August, the Toledo Blade said today, following an investigation of burglaries of the Parkland and Longfellow schools in which the board offices are located.

The theft was confirmed by Toledo and Cleveland OPA officials who disclosed that the FBI is investigating.

The coupons are negotiable anywhere in the midwest, officials said, and it is believed they were taken out of the city for sale in black market operations elsewhere.

Family's Ration Book Revoked to Dec. 31, 1944

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Aug. 28—The office of price administration yesterday imposed penalties against nine persons it accused of violating price regulations, in one instance revoking a family's war ration book until Dec. 31 1944.

Frederic S. Glover Jr., of Cleveland, OPA regional hearing commissioner assessed the most severe penalty against Mrs. A. D. Wilkinson of suburban Grosse Pointe one of a group of socially prominent persons accused of making illegal purchases.

Mrs. Wilkinson received the 'extreme penalty," Glover said because of evidence the family had a food supply "of several years" on hand. Testimony indicated she had an inventory of 1,276 cans of rationed foods with a point value of 7,273 and deep-freeze foods valued at 1,078 points.

General Approval Given Choice of Leader in Asia

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The extraordinary enthusiasm being exhibited by the allied nations over the appointment of Lord Louis Mountbatten as supreme commander for southeast Asia is at once a tribute of confidence in his leadership and an expression of relief that, as the Chinese put it, "measures planned for the destruction of Japan are being implemented."

Specifically, the designation of this forty-three year old expert in combined operations — invasions involving land, sea and air forces —is taken generally to mean that at long last the allies are getting set to invade Burma from India, across the Bay of Bengal. Since America's combined forces are on the offensive in the southwest Pacific, one envisages the application of a pincers movement ultimately on the Nipponese —one from the west and the other from the east.

Small wonder that the Chinese are elated at the prospect of reopening the Burma road, to restore their lifeline to the outside world. They were terribly disappointed that the operation wasn't carried out last winter, as I learned on my visit to Chungking the first of this year.

Chinese In Bad Way

The Chinese are in dire need of supplies of every description, both military and civilian. It's one of the world's wonders that they've been able to hang on so long. It would be dangerous to bank on their ability to continue indefinitely without the major assistance which can be supplied only by the reopening of the Burmese backdoor.

Readers often ask why the allies have to invade Burma by sea—why the invasion can't be carried out from India by land. The mountainous nature of the terrain, and the heart-breaking jungles, along the Indo-Burmese border preclude big scale military operations. There are places where small contingents of troops can operate—on the coast, for instance, and up north where a military road cuts through the mountains at Imphal—but the main attack must be amphibious, supported by air.

The youthful new commander for southeast Asia has, in his always vigorous way, flung his six feet four of hard muscle into his new job with a rush. That's good to see, but we shouldn't conclude from the announcements and the preparations that an invasion of Burma is going to take place next week or next month.

The monsoon deluge, which since April has been flooding Burma, won't be over until October. It then will be several weeks before things dry up to the point where one would expect the Allies to be ready for the attack, if indeed it's their intention to carry out the operation this year.

No Easy Job Ahead

The conquest of Burma calls for an effort of great magnitude. A huge naval fleet—presumably British, since our ships are engaged in the Pacific—will be necessary. And as in North Africa and Sicily, the Allied air fleets will blaze the way. Fortunately, India provides a superb base for the expedition, both in the intial stages and later for reinforcements and supplies.

"Louie" Mountbatten is a jack of all trades in war, having done his good bit with air, sea and commando forces. Wherever duty takes him — and it's led him through the valley of death more than once—his comrades label him as "a cheerful bloke." One would say that he is the ideal type for such gruelling work as will be called for in the terrible Burmese jungles.

Word is being circulated in informed quarters in Washington that Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell is slated to be deputy commander-in-chief. Stilwell now heads the U. S. Army forces in China, Burma and India and is chief of staff to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

If this appointment materializes it should give a fine team for the southeast Pacific. Stilwell is as hard-boiled as they come—a veteran who knows his Burma and China like a book and even also speaks Chinese.

MILITARY LAW TEST IN HAWAII LIKELY

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28—Discussions among justice, war and interior department officials pointed today toward a court test on the controversy between military and civilian authorities in Hawaii over Army suspension of the right of habeas corpus.

The procedure most discussed would bring the matter into court through a request to Lieut. Gen. Robert C. Richardson Jr., commander of the Hawaiian department, to withdraw his order against further judicial action. That could bring the matter before Federal Judge Delbert Metzger, whose writ of habeas corpus the general refused to obey, and eventually to the United States supreme court.

The case developed when Richardson refused to obey a writ of habeas corpus which the judge issued for two American citizens of German ancestry held incommunicado by the Army since shortly after Pearl Harbor. The judge assessed against Richardson a $5,000 fine for contempt of court and the general followed with an order prohibiting further litigation of the case, imposing a $5,000 fine on violators, and providing for trial before a provost court of any judge violating the order.

Weds 7 Soldiers But Divorces None

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Aug. 28 — A blond-haired, 34-year-old mother awaited extradition to Arizona today after admitting to FBI agents she was married to seven soldiers "without bothering to divorce any of them," Alan H. Belmont, district FBI chief, disclosed.

The woman, Vivian Eggers, was being held in the city prison at Columbus, O., following her guilty plea before U. S. Commissioner Robert Newlon on a charge of feloniously obtaining a soldier's $50 allowance check.

She is accused of unlawfully representing herself to be the wife of a Phoenix, Ariz., soldier in order to obtain his check. The soldier, Gordon H. Campbell, was not one of her husbands, the FBI said.

Belmont said the woman told FBI agents she married five privates, a sergeant and a lieutenant from May 1935 to June, 1943.

"You just get to drinking and having a good time, you meet some one that's kinda nice—and that's the way it happens," she was quoted by the FBI.

Mrs. Roosevelt Sees New Union of Nations

By The Associated Press

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Aug. 28 —Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told a press conference today that some type of post-war organization would obviously develop out of the present cooperation between the United Nations, but what form it would take she was not prepared to say.

"The world is growing to think in terms of a better world for all its people," she said, "and unless a great many people are going to have a better standard of living there will be no markets to absorb the increased production which will have taken place."

Wearing the uniform of the American Red Cross Mrs. Roosevelt said she planned to visit as many camps in New Zealand as possible and later would make a study of war work being done by New Zealand women. Yesterday she broadcast a message of appreciation to New Zealanders for their hospitality to American troops.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Half-Tracks

More than 50,000 scout cars and other combat vehicles have been shipped from American factories to our armed forces to aid in the speedy defeat of the Axis powers. One half-track armored scout car costs about $8,000. Figure it out yourself and you will see we will have to buy more and more War Bonds to keep the supply line intact.

Our forces are on the move beyond the Pacific and beyond the Atlantic, they are doing their job superbly. Ours is to continue to produce, continue to save. Be ready for victory. Buy more and more War Bonds. U. S. Treasury Department

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 28—Launching of the new aircraft carrier Hornet as successor to the one sunk in the Pacific will be made a special broadcast from Newport News, Va., by MBS at 11:30 Monday morning.

Because arrangements had been cancelled for the expected broadcast by Winston Shurchill on Sunday, now postponed until Tuesday, the Wake Up America forum on the Blu has now decided to delay its opening broadcast of the new season until Sept. 5.

Even before he could get on the air with his variety show at the first announced new time, the Colonel, or in other words Lamuel Q. Stoopnagle, finds they've switched on him again over at CBS. He had to vacate Tuesday nights at 9 because of next week's return of Burns and Allen, intending to move to 10:30 p. m. Tuesdays. That was wrong, he learns, for the new time actually is to be 7:30 Saturday nights.

pounding the freight yards at Salerno.

All the day and night operations cost the allies nine planes.

(The Italian communique broadcast by Rome and recorded by The Associated Press reported "considerable damage to Salerno." Italian fighters shot down six allied planes, and Germans bagged seven more, it said, while three others were downed by anti-aircraft guns.)

The Fortresses concentrated their attack on Sulmona, vital link in Italy's east coast rail line extending down to the heel and toe, in 12 minutes, dropping many tons of high explosives on the freight yards, munition stores, locomotive sheds, repair shops, warehouses, railway cars and the station.

Many explosions rose from what Fortress crewmen believed was a loaded train, and fires crackled in the target area.

Blockbusters Hit Salerno

The Wellingtons unloaded two-ton blockbusters on Salerno railroad yards and shops at that strategic point on the line from Naples to Reggio Calabria. Crewmen reported "excellent concentration" on the target.

The entire length of the Benevento railroad yards was straddled by bombs.

One formation destroyed 11 Messerschmitt 109S and two Italian fighters. Another formation got three Messerschmitts.

The road and rail junction of Catanzaro, the bottleneck linking the east and west coastal transportation systems in the center of the toe of Italy also was bombed.

Dive-bombers destroyed a railroad junction at Sibari, and also hit the freight yards in the west coast ports of Paola and Cetraro.

(A German broadcast said Nazi bombers raiding Algiers harbor Thursday night hit one warship and seven transports. Yesterday's allied communique reported this attack, but said there was only slight damage.)

One War Benefit

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO—War is smoothing one of peacetime transportation's toughest problems — legislative barriers to interstate trucking operations.

To facilitate the movement of war materials on the highways several states have suspended limitations, either through action of the legislatures or by executive order of the governors, according to the Public Administration Clearing House.

New Mexico, Maine and Arkansas have liberalized their laws regarding maximum weights. Oregon has granted non-resident owners and operators the privilege of using state highways without the payment of extra fees. Some, including South Dakota, Utah and Oklahoma, have provided for reciprocal agreements with other states regarding licenses, registration and fees.

Protects Guns

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK—The problem of protecting machine guns from dirt and water during landing operations has been overcome by a new packaging material, developed by American chemists and now in wide use on battlefronts.

At the start of the war, machine guns were coated with grease, which offered protection but did not permit immediate use of the weapons upon landing. Guns wrapped in the new material, however, are moisture and dust-proof regardless of conditions—they can be tossed into shallow water and reclaimed later, resisting moisture penetration all the while.

Developers of the material say it also is tough, but pliable at low temperatures and resistant to chemical action.

BOMBING

posted 16 Nazi fighter planes were downed and that four Flying Fortresses and seven allied fighters were lost.

The Flying Fortress attack was the second of the day by American planes. Earlier in the day medium bombers, covered by Spitfires, attacked the Nazi flying field at Diez, in France, two German fighters were shot down.

On "Hamburg" List

Nuremberg, which has great diesel plants and motor and electrical works, plainly had joined Berlin on the list of German cities to get the Hamburg treatment. It was last hit Aug. 10 and after that attack it was estimated that 45,000 had been made homeless and 2,500 had been killed.

In the Aug. 10 raid about 1,500 tons of high explosives and incendiaries were dropped on the city. There was every indication that last night's tonnage was much greater.

The German radio in a second broadcast claimed that 43 British planes were shot down over Nuremberg saying that "this number is expected to be increased." It added that "damage was done to buildings and the population suffered losses."

A third series of Nazi bulletins—they were issued as thickly as on the day after the last Berlin attack—upped the figure of British plane losses to "at least 62."

Cooler Wins City Softball Crown

Universal Defeats Epworth, 6 to 1, To Take Championship in Series.

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

Lincoln park shook from one foul line to the other last night as Universal Cooler's classy herd of softballers stampeded to win the city softball championship by trampling Epworth's plucky Methodists 6 to 1, in the fourth and final game of the 1943 Little World Series.

The Universal linemen, driving out eight hits to back up Bill Everly's four-hit pitching job, indeed looked and acted the part of real champions and worthy successors to S.W.O.C. No. 1912, Marion Steam Shovel, city titlist last season.

Last night's crucial tilt drew some 100 fans despite threatening weather.

Universal's first series victory over Epworth Monday night might have seemed unearned and not a true measuring stick of the comparative strength of Cooler, Industrial league champ, and Epworth, Sunday School loop crown snatcher. However, last night's slashing triumph was more than enough to convince even the world's greatest softball skeptic that Cooler is the No. 1 team in city league softball for 1943.

Universal's copping of the city pennant follows the general sequence of title-winning during the two-decade history of Marion softball. That is, the Industrial league champ also ascending the city throne.

Lose To Better Team

Even though John Clark's Methodists were beaten by an out-and-out better team last night they gained the favor of the fans with their last-ditch, all-out efforts against Universal. Don't forget, Epworth played four series contests as many games as Coca-Cola and Cooler combined. Some sort of series recognition should be given Epworth if only on the strength of that fact.

Bob Lashey, who shut out Coke Wednesday night on two hits, did the best he could but that was not enough. He was belted for eight bingles, including a triple and double. Bill Everly, in allowing Epworth only four hits, three singles and a double turned in one of his better hurling performances of the year. He fanned only two Epworth batters but made countless others pop up or go down on mere infield grounders. Lashey was troubled by wildness throughout the game, walking seven Universal batters.

Lloyd Hart, Cooler short fielder, as has been the case in most Cooler games this season, led the offensive attack of Universal. He laced a single and a triple for four trips, scored a run himself, and batted in four. Hart's three-bagger which went far over left fielder Bob Virden's head was the longest blow of the seven innings last night. It was most timely, moreover, coming in the fourth inning with teammate Partlow on third and Bill Everly on second. Everly had arrived at the half-way mark on a double. Partlow had started the hitting barrage with a single and advanced to third on Everly's double.

3 Runs In Fourth

Three runs came across for Cooler in the fourth, the big inning of the game. Dick Bigford, slugging right fielder, scored the first on Everly's two-baser. Bigford got to first on an error, one of Epworth's three, and went to second on Partlow's single.

Cooler broke the scoring ice in the first of the second when Chuck Reid, crackerjack second baseman, trudged home on a line-double by Bigford. Reid walked to first, was sacrificed to second by Catcher Dillinger, raced to third on one of Lashey's two wild pitches.

In the third, Universal added two more runs. Partlow led off the third when he was safe on first via an error by Bob Scott, Epworth third sacker. He went to second on a fielder's choice and came home when Hart drove out a single. Hart advanced to third on a single by Fetter, Cooler first baseman, and then went in home when Bob Virden out left field way bobbled the safety on the first bounce. After the fourth Cooler did not score again, but their lead was comfortable and virtually a positive assurance of a victory.

However, the Methodists hung on until the very last. They tallied their only run in the last of the seventh. Roy Everly, first baseman, was the Eppy to chalk up the lone marker when he scored from third on a centerfield fly by Pitcher Lashey. Everly had waited out Pitcher Everly for one of his four passes to obtain a spot on first and streaked to third on a double by second baseman Gerald Smart. This two-bagger, by the way, was was Epworth's only extra base knock.

Double Plays

Even though Cooler hitting might have seemed to dominate on the surface last night a glance at the box score shows Epworth posted what probably is a new softball record in Marion.

Epworth fielders pulled off three double plays. Cooler inner gardeners executed one.

The first twin killing by the Epworth inner defensemen came in the first inning. Bob Scott went to his left, grabbed a bounder off the bat of Joe Darnell, caught the rotund Fetter going into second, and Smart, in turn, snared Darnell running like an ice-wagon to first.

In the fifth Cooler frame Darrel Roseberry, Epworth short fielder, hung up probably the most spectacular fielding play of the night. He went fairly deep into left field to catch a fly off the bat of Don Atkinson, wheeled around and threw out Joe Darnell trying to make it home after the catch.

In the sixth, the third double out was registered by Epworth. It was executed by this combination: Shortstop Barney Evans to second baseman Smart to first sacker Everly.

Cooler's only double play came in the fourth, Joe Darnell to Reid, to Fetter.

Hard Ball Tourney in Second Round Sunday Afternoon

Three teams face possible elimination when the second round of games in the Green Camp hardball tournament is played on the Green Camp High school diamond tomorrow afternoon.

Marion Steam Shovel's outfit, and Richwood's team in the curtain raiser at 1 p. m. tomorrow. Cardington can also do the same to Green Camp when these two teams meet in the middle contest scheduled to get under way at 2:30 p. m.

The final squad which can be knocked out of the double elimination tournament tomorrow is the Agosta outfit, which meets Claridon in the last tilt at 4 p. m.

Steam Shovel was victorious last Sunday over Agosta, 7 to 1, in the first round of the tourney. Claridon did not conduct itself as a perfect guest by any means as the east-of-Marionites defeated the host Green Camp team, 9 to 4, last Sunday. In the third first phase affair, Cardington, behind the two-hit pitching of Pace, blanked Richwood, 3 to 0.

If the teams which lost last Sunday come out on top tomorrow, the six tourney entrants will be more or less back where they started last week for every team will have had one win and one loss on the tournament record books. In the event of such an outcome of tomorrow's game, Marion county's only 1943 baseball tournament is liable to run on into the middle of September.

Green Camp residents, who are sponsoring the tournament, said today each tourney team is expected to use the same battery tomorrow as last Sunday for the opening frays.

That would mean Arnold and Anderson for Steam Shovel, opposed by Cheney and Welch of Richwood. Pace probably will pitch and Graham probably will catch for Cardington against Green Camp, which probably will have Oehler on the mound and Wasserbeck behind the plate. In the nightcap, David, American-born Japanese, and Mayse are expected to form the battery for Claridon and Corbin and Pierce for Agosta.

J. B. BRAY WINS OVER R. M. CHENEY

J. B. Bray, winner of the first flight crown in the 1943 Marion Country club's vice president golf tournament, defeated R. M. Cheney, 5 and 4, Thursday in a first round match of the annual Country club championship. This contest was the only first round match played in either the club event or the president's handicap tourney up to yesterday.

Deadline for first round tilts has been set for tomorrow. This means that Country club golfers must get busy or forfeit their right to play in one or both traditional tournaments.

Deadline for second round matches in both tourneys is Sunday, Sept. 5. Third round affairs must be finished by Sept. 12, semifinals by Sept. 19, and the two finals by Sept. 26.

Dayton Man Wins "Grand"

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 28—The most surprised man in the world, 33-year-old Jasper Rogers of Dayton, had about $1,600 with which to buy war bonds today after an amazing finish in the Grand American trapshoot.

Rogers, a warplant tool-maker, won trapdom's No. 1 prize, the Grand American handicap by defeating five others in a 50-target shootoff after the sextet had tied at 97 of 100, lowest score to win the event since 1931.

With only two targets to go in the shootoff, Rogers was one clay behind Paul Wagner, Lima, O., salesman, who looked like a certain winner after breaking the first 25 in a row. But Wagner missed the last pair to drop to second place and Rogers found himself in possession of the crown.

Rogers [illegible] kept alive the tradition that "unknowns from nowhere" always win the handicap. The new champion never had broken more than 92 of 100 before.

While Rogers was slipping in the back door for the handicaps championship, Seaman Rudy Etchen, shooting instructor at Navy pier, Chicago, repeated as the National doubles king with 96 of 100, breaking the last 65 without a miss.

The feminine end of the handicap went to 17-year-old "Skipper" Winkler of Wellsburg, W. Va., who cracked 90 of 100 from 17 yards.

The all-around championship went to Hermel Cheek, police chief of Clinton, Ind., who broke 478 of 500 in the doubles, 16-yard handicap divisions.

WALTERS MSATERS ST. LOUIS CARDS, 3-2

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Aug. 28—Bucky Walters last night, before the largest crowd of the season to witness a Cincinnati Reds game under the Crosley field lights, mastered the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 2.

The Cards got their two runs in the second and third innings, but after the fourth frame, Bucky began to "fog 'em in" and only one Red Bird was able to connect safely.

The Reds bunched three hits in Frank McCormick smacking a the fourth inning to tie the score, double after singles by Max Marshall and Bert Haas. Marshall was the hitting star of the evening with four safeties and Bert Haas got three out of four trips to the plate.

Walters wound up the game in a blaze of glory by fanning two pinch-hitters in the ninth inning. Howie Krist was the loser.

Sidelights From Series Contest

Right-handed Universal Cooler batsmen, when they discovered early in the game last night that Bob Lashey was anybody but the hurler who handcuffed Coca-Cola Wednesday night, promptly began to pull the Epworth moundsman's offerings into left field. The result, which shows up so conspicuously in the box score, was that Universal for the first time in either the series or the district tournament produced some solid base hits. Practically every Cooler hitter swung early at the Lashey pitches and lined T.N.T. smashes down the left field line.

* * *

Winfred Gorenflo, manager of the Coke boys, who were the first team eliminated from the Series, was a dejected and at the same time, entirely bewildered man, as he sat in the Epworth dug out last night. Half disgusted and half baffled, Gorenflo popped this question to Methodist players, "Why do we have to play Epworth when they're good instead of, like they are tonight against Cooler."

Milwaukee Stretches Lead Over Columbus

By The Associated Press

Milwaukee jumped into a 3½ game lead in the American association pennant race last night by beating Indianapolis 4 to 3 while second-place Columbus was losing to St. Paul, the cellar team, 8 to 2.

With Ray Blaemire, former Red Bird, leading the attack with a triple and a double, St. Paul shelled Jack Creel from the mound in the sixth inning after touching him for nine hits and seven runs. Columbus scored twice in the initial frame, but Art Herring then settled down to blank the Flock the rest of the way, turning in a 4-hit job for his 103rd victory since first joining the Saints.

Toledo remained in the first division by downing Minneapolis 2 to 1.

The Kansas City Blues climbed from the basement by whipping Louisville twice, 9-2 and 1-0, the second game going 10 innings and featuring 14 strikeouts by the Blues' Johnny Johnson.

Volo Song To Get Rest from Racing Next Year

By The Associated Press

GREENVILLE, O., Aug. 28—Volo Song, Hambletonian victor of 1943 and winner of $43,357.49 in the past two years, will not race in 1944. Owner Bill Stang of Brooklyn said today that the trotter would be given a year's vacation and that the Ambassador, also owned by Stang and winner of the 1942 Hambletonian, would be returned to competition next season.

First place in the $3,143 horseman futurity, pacing division, at the Darke county fair yesterday went to King's Counsel, paying his owners, Parshall and Gray of Urbana, $1,521.

Adios and Gray Mist, only other entries in the program feature, a carry-over from Thursday because of weather, followed second and third in both heats, respectively.

Five other races, three of them carry-overs, also were run at the closing session of the five-day meeting.

NORBERT BREAKS INTO TOP BATTING LIST

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 28 — Milwaukee's slugging outfielder Ted Norbert finally broke into the "top ten" batting list of the American association this week with a .333 mark—but was far removed from his teammate and leading hitter, Grey Clarke.

Clarke raised his mark from .333 to .339, increasing his margin over Columbus' Chet Wieczorek by six points. The Records first baseman made an attempt to catch the frontrunner, but only could increase his percentage from .331 to .333.

Norbert's arrival has been expected, for he is regarded the most dangerous man in the league at the plate, leading in home runs with 21 and also in runs-batted-in with 92. In six games he drove 12 men across with his timely hitting, but his .293 mark left him last on the list of ten best batting averages.

Fort Garrison of Louisville was clipping .347 and Willard Pike of Indianapolis had posted .343, but this pair had played in only 77 games and did not yet merit attention among the leaders.

Following second-place Wieczorek in averages compiled through Wednesday's games, were Phil Weintraub of Toledo, who jumped from sixth into a tie for third with Columbus' Augie Bergamo, at .320; Hershel Martin of Milwaukee, .313; Joe Moore, Indianapolis, .312; Tommy McBride, Louisville, .310; G. I. English of Indianapolis, .306 and Stew Hofferth, also of Indianapolis, .304.

Clarke led in total hits with 148, while Bergamo's 29 doubles and the 11 triples by Steve Barath of Louisville were tops. Russ Rolandson of Minneapolis was ahead in stolen bases with 14 to his credit, but three other players each had filched 13.

Milwaukee led in team batting with .282, followed at .270 by Indianapolis and at .269 by Toledo. St. Paul was the best team afield with a .974 mark, while Columbus had .971 and Toledo and Kansas City had .970 apiece.

The top pitching record of 12 wins and five losses was held by Preacher Roe of Columbus. Ted Wilks, his teammate, had a 14-6 record and Jim Trexler of Indianapolis was pegged at 17-7. Roe and Wilks also were locked in a race for the strikeout lead with 108 and 100, respectively.

Cooler Willing To Play All-Stars

Universal Cooler, after winning the city title last night, agreed to play "the pick of the town" in an all-star softball game at Lincoln park next Thursday night. All proceeds for the contest will go into a fund for lights at Lincoln park next season.

John Clark, manager of the runner-up Epworth team, accepted the softball commission's proposal that he manage the all-star team, which will be composed of leading players on the ten city league softball teams outside of Cooler. Mr. Clark said he would make the selection of the team, which has a player limit of 15, sometime today.

Fostoria Team Wins First Game in Tourney

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 28—Ferguson Auditors of Columbus, defending champions of the state softball tournament, take on the West Side Cabs of Dayton tonight in their second game of the 1943 event after eliminating National Fireworks of Chillicothe, 7-2, in a first round game.

Keeping pace with the titlists were Lima Locomotive, which trimmed Akron Firestone, 5-4 in a 13-inning contest, and Fostoria Screws, which blasted Zanesville Armco, 6-2, in eight innings.

In the only women's game of opening day, Pauline Sells turned in a no-hit performance for Columbus J. K. Shoes in shutting out Lima City Loan, 8-0.

Flying Fortresses at cruising speed use 250 gallons of gasoline an hour, and at full throttle the rate is almost doubled.

15 "Old Timers" Lined Up To Play All-Star Team

Arrangements for the post-season softball game between an old-timers' outfit and an all-star city league squad are well under way with 15 former softball performers, inactive during the 1943 season, already "lined up" to play.

These men, who contacted Elmer Smith and "Smitty" Richards, originators of the tournament, this week include Benny Crabtree, Richards, Johnny Marshall, Dale Schradeder, William R. Martin, Marion Hinklin, Bob Zahn, Don Shoemaker, Maynard Snyder, Robert Marchant, Jerry Neimeyer, Hal Applegett, E. G. "Jap" Siefert, Woodrow "Woody" Walters and Larry Walters.

Smith said he, too, undoubtedly will give the old-umers' team the benefit of his active services some time during the tussle with the All-Stars.

John Clark, dean of Marion softballers, has agreed to manage the old-timers' club.

Although the old-timers' roster is now sufficient to carry on a seven-inning game with the All-Stars, Smith says any other former Marion softball players, over 30, are welcome to join the old-time ranks.

No definite date has been set for the contest. However, it has been decided that all proceeds for the game will go to the Marion Canteen.

AL SMITH LIKES SOX GAMES BEST

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug 28—Of the 13 games Al Smith has won this year, his four straight triumphs over Jimmy Dykes' Chicago White Sox probably have given him the greatest satisfaction.

After the Cleveland Indians secured the National league cast-off from Buffalo four years ago, the Sox pilot remarked contemptuously "that guy's fast ball couldn't break a pane of glass."

The veteran southpaw allowed only six hits as the Tribe defeated the Pale Hose 6 to 2 last night to break a third place and move within half a game of the runner-up Washington Nationals.

The Sox' southpawing Smith, Edgar, kept pace with his namesake for the first seven innings but folded in the eighth when the Indians broke a 2-all deadlock with a trio of runs.

Triples by Russ Peters and Hank Edwards and a single by Jeff Heath gave the Tribe a pair of markers in the opening stanza but Ray Mack's wild throw in the third and Luke Appling's homer in the following frame knotted the count.

Mickey Rocco started the Indians' eighth-inning attack with a single and Roy Cullinbine's double moved him to third. Edgar then uncorked a wild pitch to let one run across. Heath walked and was forced by Buddy Rosar as Cullenbine scored. Rosar moved to second as Dick Culler threw wild trying for a double play and crossed the plate on Oris Hockett's single. Smith, Peters and Rocco singles in succession for Cleveland's final run in the ninth.

Disney Feature, "Saludos Amigos" on Double Feature Program with Milland-Goddard Comedy.

[illegible] Duck emerges as typical [illegible] American tourist in Walt [illegible] musical entertainment, "Saludos Amigos," coming Sunday to play through Wednesday at the Palace theater. Most of South America is visited in the film and Donald wears a tourist camera that snaps everything in sight [illegible] his pocket camera and learns the samba to the tune of "Brazil" under the tutelage of Joe Carioca, the Brazilian jitterbird.

Donald is first seen involved with the geography, the natives and the animal life of Lake Titicaca and the surrounding vistas. He learns the rich Inca music and woos a llama with a native flute. But it is in Rio de Janeiro that Donald really gets in the groove.

"Saludos Amigos," which means "hello friends," is climaxed by a flourish of samba music and singing, with Donald leading the entertainment. The film also includes impressions of Argentina, Brazil and Chile in addition to Peru and Bolivia.

On the same bill, "The Crystal Ball," starring Ray Milland and Paulette Goddard, will be shown. In the comedy, staged against the carnival atmosphere of a New York honky tonk district, fortune teller Gladys George befriends Paulette Goddard by getting her a job next door at a shooting gallery. When Madame Zenobia breaks her back, Paulette doubles for her and meets and gives confidential information to attorney Ray Milland, who, on the advice, invests money of his client, a wealthy young widow, Virginia Field, in property in which the government is interested in. The intrigue and scandal in which Paulette and Ray become innocently involved follows.

Returning to the Palace theater Thursday through Friday is "Mrs. Miniver," Jan Struther's human story of an average English woman of the middle classes facing the horrors of warfare on the home front. The picture, teaming Miss Garson and Walter Pigeon, tells of the quiet heroic courage and abiding faith of a people under air attacks and raids.

Gene Tierney in Ohio Film

Starred with Don Ameche in "Heaven Can Wait," Booked Through Thursday.

Gene Tierney and Don Ameche head the cast of the new Ernst Lubitsch technicolor production, "Heaven Can Wait," which started Friday at the Ohio theater, and will continue through Thursday.

Hailed as a saucy story of the nifty nineties, "Heaven Can Wait," gives a peek through the keyhole at what made the gay old days so gay. Sparkling with forbidden adventure and stolen romance, the film reveals what went on after the ball was over—and the gas lights went out!

Don Ameche is a scion of a staid New York household—and his antics stand the family on its ear. Gene is the lady fair whom he woos—and wins—but Don is a flighty person, while Gene is not what you could call a submissive sort of a gal. Which means that even after they're happily married there are lots of fireworks.

In addition to Miss Tierney and Ameche, the large cast includes Charles Coburn, Marjorie Main, Laird Cregar, Spring Byington, Allyn Joslyn, Eugene Pallette and Signe Hasso.

"Watch on the Rhine," based upon Lillian Hellman's famous play, will come to the Ohio screen Friday for a seven-day engagement. It stars Bette Davis and Paul Lukas, who won the award of the New York Drama league for the outstanding portrayal of the season in the Broadway hit of "Watch on the Rhine."

Bette Davis is the American wife of Kurt Miller (Paul Lukas), a German who has made the fight against Fascism his life work. She plays the role of a devoted, courageous wife, in complete sympathy with the ideals of her husband and therefore prepared to accept with him the risks of a dangerous profession.

GENE TIERNEY AND DON AMECHE, above, are at the Ohio theater this week in "Heaven Can Wait." The technicolor film is now playing and will continue through Thursday.

'Hitler's Children' To Be On Double Program at State

"Hitler's Children," adapted from the book," Education for Death," by Gregor Ziemer, and starring Tim Holt and Bonita Granville, is one of the two features scheduled to play at the State theater Sunday and Monday. The film shows the horrors of the Nazi regime in Germany.

Playing on the same bill will be "Powder Town" with Victor McLaglen and Edmond O'Brien.

"Gold Rush," featuring Charlie Chaplin, and "Scattergood Baines Pulls the Strings" with Guy Kibbee are the two attractions for Tuesday.

Hugh Sinclair and Sally Gray co-star in "Saint's Vacation," which plays Wednesday. With it will be "Jacare," an animal feature.

For Thursday, Friday and Saturday the two films "They Drive by Night," starring Ann Sheridan and George Rarft, and "Southward Ho" with Roy Rogers and Mary Hart, is scheduled.

Labor Day Week-End To End Cedar Point Season

Climaxing its 45th season, Cedar Point-on-Lake Erie will present a Labor Day week-end program of dance music at the grand ballroom. Hal McIntyre and his Orchestra round out the finale of another typical Cedar Point season.

McIntyre's Music Makers, recently selected by 80 odd college editors as the best new band of the year, was held over by popular demand to play the closing days. The curtain comes down on Cedar Point's 1943 dance program Labor Day evening.

Basket Picnic To Be Held by Grange Group

Plans were made for a basket picnic Sept. 12 and the annual inspection Sept. 21 at a meeting of Grand Prairie Grange Tuesday night. The picnic will be a family affair for all members and former members of the Grange and will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Linn of the Bucyrus pike. The dinner will be at 12 o'clock.

Elmer A. Williams, county deputy, will conduct the annual inspection.

Mrs. Wallace Linn gave a reading, and music included a cornet solo by Mary Lyons, a vocal solo by Jack Lill and a cornet and clarinet duet by Mary and Helen Lyons. Paul Lill and Mrs. Walter Lyons gave readings. Mrs. Lyons served as lecturer.

Reserve Bank Appeals Again to Penny Hoarders

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 28—The Federal Reserve bank of Cleveland, which usually reckons its monetary affairs in millions of dollars, is being embarrassed by "penny pinchers."

President Matthew J. Fleming, in a second appeal, today urged hoarders to empty their piggy banks, sugar bowls and glass jars of pennies and put them back in circulation.

He said the bank has been sending out about 2,500,000 pennies a week and getting back from member banks in the fourth Federal Reserve district only about 200,000 pennies each week. "It's a mystery where they all go," he added.

A year ago, the bank made its first appeal and pennies flowed back into circulation at the rate of 4,500,000 a month—for six months. Fleming said delivery of the new steel pennies in large quantities had been delayed, and the return of coins not withheld would relieve pressure on the mints.

Rogers-Milland Film at Marion

"The Major and the Minor" To Be on Double Bill with "Ghosts on the Loose."

"The Major and the Minor" starring Ginger Rogers and Ray Milland and "Ghosts on the Loose" starring the East Side Kids will start at the Marion theater with a midnight show Saturday and continue through Monday.

Seldom does a star have such a field day of acting as Ginger Rogers in this story of a girl who determines to quit New York for her home town but doesn't have the fare it will take to get there.

"Ghosts on the Loose" is a comedy-drama of the conflict between a Nazi gang of saboteurs and a group of individualistic young Americans.

"The Palm Beach Story" starring Joel McCrea and Claudette Colbert and "Cowboy from Manhattan" starring Robert Paige and Frances Langford will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday.

The first film is the story of a wife's efforts to break away from her down-and-out husband so she will be free to get him the financial assistance his business needs.

Robert Paige portrays the cowboy in "Cowboy from Manhattan" who becomes involved in a theatrical enterprise. Miss Langford is the singing star of the show.

"Harrigan's Kid" starring William Gargan, Bobby Readick and Frank Craven and "The Old Chisholm Trail" with Johnny Mack Brown and Tex Ritter will start Thursday and continue through Saturday.

"Harrigan's Kid" brings to the screen the adventures of a young jockey learning to ride "The Old Chisholm Trail" deals mainly with the attempt of an unscrupulous property owner to maintain a water monopoly which threatens ruin for the pioneer cattlemen.

Afghanistan has an area of 251,000 miles.

Marion Man's Brother Wounded in Action

Joseph Schnitzler of Nye street received word yesterday that his brother, Pfc. O. G. Schnitzler, was wounded in action in the Southwest Pacific area July 23 and has been hospitalized. The news originally was received in a telegram to his sister, Mrs. Roy Kitts of Fostoria, formerly from Marion.

Pfc. Schnitzler, who is 24 years old, made his home with his brother here several years ago and had many acquaintances in Marion. He entered the army from Fostoria in January, 1941. He is in an infantry division and has been in the Southwest Pacific area for 14 months.

Former Marion Man Gets Army Commission

Joe H. Porter of Columbus, formerly of Marion, was graduated from the adjutant general's school at Fort Washington, Md., with the rank of second lieutenant, on Aug. 25, according to word received by his aunt, Miss Ruth Porter of East Center street. Mrs. Porter of Columbus, wife of Lt. Porter, attended the exercises.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

A CHORUS of assents from the Veritzens, from Katharine and from Dicky and me greeted my father's query. He did not speak for a second, smiling at us all, and evidently enjoying the dramatic suspense which he was building up.

"First," he said, "she took as devious a route back—once she had completed her interview with Redfield—as she had done in approaching my hideaway. Then she went back to the Myers apartment, and my trailers except the one always on guard there, went away thinking she was safely kenneled. But in less than ten minutes a private car drew up to the door, driven by a plump woman of respectable appearance.

Prepared for Emergency

"For two days I have kept a taxi just around the corner from the Myers apartment, waiting for the very emergency which confronted my guard when a tall woman, dressed in mourning and heavily veiled, came out of the Myers apartment and entered the private car. The elevator operator and the janitor piled several pieces of luggage into the car and it drove off, closely trailed by my man in the taxicab, for he was certain the woman in mourning was the one he had been instructed to trail.

"This time" my father went on, "she did not take a circuitous route, but drove to this hotel and went directly to a suite on the floor above this. She is not registered—she but this minute arrived—and she has not yet contacted Milner. But I imagine that she is going to remain here—unregistered—for the duration,' so she fancies."

There was something deadly menacing in the way he uttered the last three words, and his manner deflated the consternation with which all of us, in varying reactions, heard his news.

"Oh!" Katharine exclaimed. "That woman staying here spying on us!" Then, as the meaning of his last words sank in, she caught her breath sharply.

All Are Astonished

"You mean?—" she faltered, as the echoes of the astonished exclamations of the rest of us were stilled, "that this afternoon will—"

Her voice trailed off faintly, and my father finished her sentence for her.

"Will end her activities for a long space of time, perhaps forever?" he said with a rising inflection. "That is exactly what I mean. I told you before that I hoped to accomplish this end, but I never before have been able to assert confidently that Ruth Hayes was at the end of her trail. But—if nothing unforeseen comes up—I can assure you that she never will trouble Jack or any one else, after today.

"Thank heaven!" Katharine breathed, and I think we all echoed her. Then we all snapped to attention as my father began to speak again, slowly, incisively.

More Good News

"I can tell you all other cheering things also," he said. "By tonight, I shall have in my hands evidence enough against Redfield and against Milner so that I no longer shall need them as goats to stake out the tiger."

Philip Veritzen started impetuously to rise, then remembering his dignity, sank back in his chair again.

"You mean you are going to have them arrested?" he asked hopefully, and I realized that he disliked the task of discharging Milner and Redfield, though he repeatedly had urged my father to allow him to get rid of both the Lansfield manager and the leading man of my play.

"No, Philip," my father replied with a smile. "I do not wish to arrest them for two or three days yet. But I do wish that you would discharge them both, ostensibly for failure to satisfy you in their duties, as soon as I give you the word."

"I shall do that with pleasure," the impresario said with a grim smile, living up to his traditional role of martinet, and my father spoke again, this time in less confident fashion.

Rounding Them Up

"We are rounding up all the lesser ones," he said, "and we are blazing a trail to the center of the conspiracy. But we as yet have been unable to get any clue to Marion's whereabouts. Miss Whitlock wrote me only yesterday that Lillian was bearing up bravely, but that she feared a break if the suspense were kept up much longer."

The telephone had been ringing while he was talking, but until he noticed it himself, no one moved to answer it. When he paused, and looked at Dicky with raised eyebrows, my husband dashed to the telephone. I knew, as he barked out: "What's that?" that something disturbing was coming over the wire.

He listened for several seconds, then said "Wait a second!" and turning to my father, putting his palm over the receiver.

"It's Ronald," he said, in hushed tones, "and he seems highly excited over something. He wants to see you immediately."

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING M. D.

What Is Your Type?

IF WE UNDERSTOOD human growth completely, we would understand many of the unsolved problems of nutrition. For instance, a boy from aged 5 to aged 13 is generally eating quite a hefty set of meals but he hardly grows at all. Then all of a sudden he starts to grow like a house afire with no increase in the amount of food he takes in.

Certainly an increase in body size requires proportionate nutrition, so why doesn't he grow from five on when he is doing all that eating? Then at 18, or thereabouts again without any manifest change in his food habits, he stops growing. And you could pile extra food into him until Doomsday but still he wouldn't grow any more. Some say it is his glands, but you can stuff him with glands and not the width of a thumbnail will he grow.

The Stocky Type

Different groups of people show certain tendencies to grow along lines of both height and weight. And these result in types. The stocky types tend to be short, the slender types tend to be tall. There are all sorts of gradations in between.

These types have come in for a great deal of study, by anthropologists and physicians, who conclude that certain types are fitted for certain work and are subject to certain stresses in life.

For instance, the Japanese as a racial characteristic are stocky. In height the average Japanese is 159 centimeters, as against an Iowa farmer's average of 176. In weight the Japanese is 2940 grams against the Iowan's 3400. The Japanese is carrying considerably more grams per centimeter than the American and this is all in muscle and bone. He can be predicted to have more endurance in marching and in staying on long watches. Will power, of course being equal, and we should have learned by this time not to underrate our enemy on that.

As applied to medical practice the doctrine of constitutional types has had many proponents. Their classifications of individual bodily types differ slightly, but the general principles are the same. There are in general the linear and the lateral kinds of people. And it must be evident to anyone who does the least bit of thinking on the subject that they are fated to have different troubles in life. There is the dyspeptic and the apoplectic, and the consumptive and the enthusiastic and the phlegmatic and the nervous and the stable—all types just as much related to the kinds of bodies they inhabit as a cactus is related to the desert, or an elm to watershed country.

Not of course, that this is all there is to the causation of disease. There is environment, home training in childhood, heredity and the accidents of germs and occupation. But it teaches us to individualize in treating patients.

• • •

C. S.: I have been told that giving blood will tend to make a person put on weight. Is this true? I have been planning to donate to the Red Cross, but I wouldn't want to put on any weight as a result of it.

Answer: Well, there have been some pretty nutty rumors going around the country the last few months, but this takes the prize. How could taking away something add weight? It is like saying, "Burning down a part of the house will make it bigger." Or subtracting one from ten gets twelve. Go ahead and patriotically give your blood to the Red Cross and then patriotically observe rationing and you won't gain weight.

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

FOR SUNDAY, AUG. 29

SUNDAY'S horoscope favors all serious work, and also ecclesiastics, thinkers and those disposed to take things with a critical eye. Elders, employers and those in authority would be best to seek out for favors and cooperation in any field of practical endeavor. Application and faithful industry should merit due rewards, of a substantial nature.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared to work with diligence and fidelity, in the interest of substantial bodies, taking their work seriously, with the idea of endurance and security in forthcoming rewards of honest effort. Elders, superiors or employers should not be found lacking in proper appreciation and cooperations.

* * *

FOR MONDAY, AUG. 30

Monday's astrological forecast is for a fair share of activity and good fortune, in which there is much satisfaction. Utilize all avenues for rewards and tokens of preferment. Reckless or impulsive tendencies should be firmly regulated lest there be disaster or regrets. Probable accidents are indicated.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an active and productive year, with employers and others ready to be generous with rewards and promotions, but an impulse to act rashly or with stressed ardor, or emotional strains, should be regulated.
